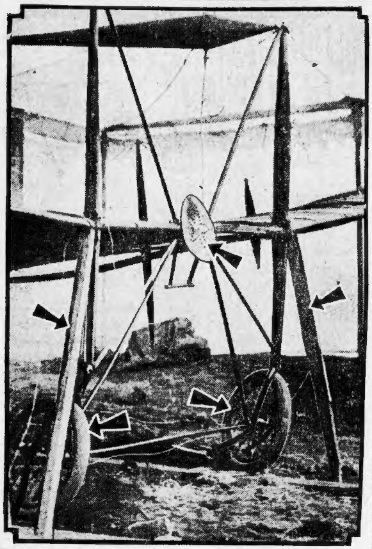
Pfitzner Monoplane After Its Accident



This machine fell twenty-five feet at Harvard Aviation Field to-day, with Aviator Horace F. Kearny. Kearny was unhurt. The serious damage to the machine is shown. Arrows point to the broken wheel stilts and to the forward control, which was crumpled up into a shapeless mass. The operator's seat was ripped off and the entire frame of the monoplane was much strained.

AVIATOR FALLS IN AEROPLANE AT SQUANTUM

HARVARD AVIATION FIELD, Squantum, Aug. 31.—Horace F. Kearny and the Pfitzner monoplane owned by W. Starling Burgess fell to the ground from a height of twenty-five feet in a tryout flight to-day.

The machine was damaged so that it will take ten days to put it in shape. Kearny luckily escaped unhurt.

He was suspended because he had not secured the committee's sanction for the flight.

The accident was caused by a nasty gust of wind catching the planes of the machine, whirling it around sharply. The monoplane dived to the ground with a crash.

Kearny started on his tryout flight at 7:24. When the monoplane was ready, Kearny ran it down the field a short distance. Then he rose to a height of twenty feet.

He let the monoplane glide to earth again, running along the ground for a brief distance. Then he sent the machine up twenty-five feet. He was practicing these rises and dips to see how the machine was working.

It was on this second rise that the gust of wind caught him unexpectedly and whirled the machine almost end for end.

Before Kearny could regulate the supporting plane the machine crashed to the ground, the forward control getting the brunt of the impact.

This forward control crumpled up and splintered. The weelstilts were broken. The whole monoplane was generally jarred and strained.

Aviator Escapes.

Kearny's escape from injury was due to the short length of the fall, to the fact

GODDESS OF JUSTICE DROPS HER SCALES

GREENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 31.—The statue of Justice, the "blind goddess," that stands with outstretched arm on the huge dome of the Westmoreland County Courthouse, dropped her scales just as court criers were announcing the adjournment of criminal court. The heavy balances struck the pavement, more than a hundred feet below, with a loud crash, but no one was hurt.

HITS DYNAMITE ON PICK; LOSES HAND

KITTANNING, Pa., Aug. 31.—Alexander Burkitt, aged seventeen, found a dynamite cap and attempted to remove a large stone from the front yard of his home. He placed the cap on the stone and hit it with a hammer. The stone is still there, but Burkitt lost his right hand.

PATROLMAN IN PLAIN CLOTHES IS HELD UP

Patrolman Edward J. McMahon, who has never fully recovered from a bullet wound during the Jamaica Plain yegg raid two years ago, was given a severe beating by two holdup men early to-day on Moreland street, near Warren, in Roxbury, as he was on his way home. The policeman, who is attached to the Dudley street station, was robbed of $75 and three bank books.

Despite the fact that he still carries a bullet in his abdomen and has been under the treatment of his physician, the policeman showed real grit by clinging to the heavier of the two men who attacked him. The three had a rough and tumble fight in the street. Finally one of the robbers made off. McMahon clung to the other. At the Dudley street station the prisoner said he was Edward Johnston, of No. 17 Bowdoin street.

This address and the facts in the holdup were immediately telephoned to headquarters. At the Bowdoin street address, which proved to be a lodging house, detectives found the $75 and the bank books taken from Patrolman McMahon, and arrested William Kelly, who said he had recently come to Boston from Portland. Kelly was later identified by McMahon as one of his assailants.

Both Johnston, who comes from Roxbury, and Kelly were arraigned in the Roxbury district court to-day, and each held in $1,000 for a hearing to-morrow.

Patrolman McMahon received congratulations to-day on his game fight against odds. He was in citizen's clothing at the time, so the robbers had no idea they were tackling a policeman. The beating he received shook the policeman up quite a bit, and aggravated his weakened condition, which resulted from his being shot by the Forest Hills yeggmen July 24, 1908.

The spot on Moreland street where the holdup occurred is not well lighted. In court Patrolman McMahon testified that the two men had sprung out from a dark doorway, the heavier man, Johnston, jumping on him from the rear.

UNFROCKED PASTOR SHOOTS TWO WOMEN

Professional Marathon runners will have Brown, an unfrocked minister, to-day shot and killed Mrs. Edith Ward and fatally wounded Mrs. Anne Lamphere, whose jealousy is said to have caused the tragedy. Brown, who was a veteran of the Boer War, was formerly pastor of the Christian Church at Lee's Summit, but lately has been working as a car conductor and a railroad fireman. He was dismissed from his church when he lost $60 of church funds in a poker game.

FUTURITY STAKES AT READVILLE

This is Futurity Day at Readville, when the annual stakes for the three-year-old trotters and pacers, to the value of $10,000, are offered by the American Horse Breeder of this city, and the great races carded for to-day look to be the best offered by the well-known New England turf publication in the fostering of the interest among the breeders of the standard trotters and pacers.

The greatest rivals among the trotting three-year-olds that the American turf has ever known, Colorado E. (2:07¼), and Native Belle (2) (2:07¾), meet again to-day at Readville to renew their stirring battle fought out in the Matron Stake at the Empire track, New York, and there seems a splendid assurance for the claim of many of the phalanx of horsemen now gathered in our midst that we shall see the best futurity event to-day at Readville that has been known in all the famous years of the trotting and pacing, colt and filly, that has made New England famous as a breeding place of the finest futurity material.

Two-Horse Race.

Even viewed from the most charitable angle, the race to-day appears to be only a two-horse affair, although Emily Ellen (2:10¼), the fine daughter of Todd and Morning Bells, is named to start, and her victories at Detroit and Cleveland were most impressive, in best heats in 2:10¼ and 2:10½.

There are also named in to-day's futurity upon its trotting side Bon Vivant (2:16¼), Eva Tanguay (2:16½) and Eva Bellini. In any ordinary year these futurity candidates would be looked upon as marvels, but their talents are obscured by

NATION WIDE STRIKE IN SPAIN

MADRID, Aug. 31.—The Federation of Labor meeting at Bilbao to-day decided to call a general strike throughout Spain. Such an order was issued a few days ago to go into effect August 27, but was revoked. Dock workers and teamsters in the north have walked out in sympathy with the striking miners. Their action is believed to have led to the resumption of plans for a nation-wide fight.

HEINZE WEDDING IS THIS EVENING

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—F. Augustus Heinze, the millionaire copper man who was recently acquitted of violating the United States banking laws and who is now being sued by Mrs. Lillian Hobart French, will be married this evening in the apartments of the Rev. Dr. Hambel, a Protestant Episcopal minister, at No. 34 Jefferson avenue, Brooklyn.

VICTIM OF TRAGEDY IS IDENTIFIED

The young woman of mystery who was found dead, shot through the heart, in Young's Hotel, yesterday, was identified to-day as Miss Clara E. Cavanaugh of No. 52 Savin street, Roxbury. Medical Examiner Waters said that it was a clear case of suicide.

Every mark that would be likely to lead to the identity of the dead girl had been carefully removed. The police had worked late last night in various directions to establish the identity of the girl, and had failed. The identification was made about 9 a. m. by Mrs. Louise Cavanaugh, the mother of the victim, and a sister.

MOTHER HAD FEARED TRAGEDY FOR SOME TIME.

The mother and other members of Miss Cavanaugh's family readily admitted that in their opinion she had taken her own life. They said that she had been ill from nervous troubles and that she had feared some such tragedy for some time.

The dead girl was twenty-eight years of age. She lived with her mother and had three sisters and two brothers. The father died a year or so ago. Miss Cavanaugh was an expert dressmaker. She had also been employed as a salesgirl in some of the big stores of the city.

But for the past two and a half years the young woman had been ill. She was melancholy. There was no particular reason for her brooding so far as her people knew, and the doctors who were consulted could not trace her trouble definitely.

"She's been babied too much," one of the doctors said.

But the members of the family could not bring themselves to treat her otherwise than in the most kindly way. While the other members of the family were away on Saturday Miss Cavanaugh disappeared. The family were worried. They made some inquiries, but were unable to get any trace of her. They feared that some harm had befallen her.

Last Letter to Mother.

On Monday Mrs. Cavanaugh received this note from her missing daughter:

> Dear Mother:
>
> I am going away. You need not worry about me. I'm going where you'll never see me again. You could never imagine where I will be so there is no use to look for me. You can't find me.
>
> CLARA.

While the note did not give the members of the family any idea that Miss Cavanaugh intended to take her own life they worried very much over it. But there was nothing about the note by which it could be traced.

When the members of the family read in the newspapers a description of the girl and her clothing who had killed herself at Young's Hotel they came to the conclusion that she was Clara.

When Mrs. Cavanaugh and another daughter went to the Grove street morgue to-day they were shown some of the young woman's clothing.

"Yes, that belongs to Clara," they said.

Then they were permitted to look at the face of the dead young woman.

"It is Clara—it is poor Clara," said the mother, bursting into tears.

Arrangements were made for the removal of the body to the late home of the victim of the hotel tragedy.

Autopsy on Girl's Body.

An autopsy on the body of Miss Cavanaugh was performed by Medical Examiner Waters at the North Grove street morgue at noon to-day. At its conclusion Dr. Waters announced that it was a positive case of suicide; that death had been caused by a bullet wound and that no poison of any nature had been taken by the young woman.

The bullet entered the left breast, grazed the heart and was deflected, passing through the lung and liver. It was located just beneath the surface of the skin at the back. The medical examiner said that the young woman lived but two or three minutes following the firing of the shot.

Miss Cavanaugh went to the hotel on Monday forenoon. She registered as "Clara E. Moulton, Beverly." She had dinner at the hotel and was last seen early Monday evening. A bellboy said that Miss Cavanaugh told him to look for a man who would arrive from New York, carrying a heavy black suitcase and who would register as "A. S. Durant."

The only thing left by the dead girl was a small square of paper, on which was written, apparently in her handwriting, the two words, "ill health." There was evidence on the table in the room that the young woman had taken some kind of a powder. It was thought at first that this might have been poison. Medical Examiner Waters said to-day that he felt satisfied that it was a bromide of some kind and that it was taken probably as a sleeping potion.

"Do you know why your daughter used the name 'Clara E. Moulton' when she registered?" the mother was asked to-day.

Had No Men Friends.

"No," she replied, "we know of no one of that name."

"Do you know of any friend of your daughter named Durant?"

"No, she had no friend of that name. The bellboy of the hotel must have been mistaken in that. My daughter had no men friends. She cared nothing about men. The great trouble with her was that she insisted in remaining home in seclusion rather than going away from home and mixing with company.

"There is absolutely no truth to any statement or supposition that a man figured in this sad tragedy in any way. My daughter suffered from melancholia and we were not able to do anything for her, although we did everything that we could.

"She must have meant us to know that she intended to take her own life when she wrote the note, although I could not bring myself to think of such a dreadful thing when I got the note."

ROOSEVELT AT OSAWATOMIE

OSAWATOMIE, Kas., Aug. 31.—Theodore Roosevelt's arrival at Osawatomie at 9:25 to-day was hailed with delight by the Kansas Progressives.

"This is a State which shows independence of thought," was the Colonel's comment as he neared the Kansas boundary. Although the ex-President came here primarily to dedicate the John Brown Park, named in honor of the famous abolitionist, he has made no secret of the fact that he wants to know how the fight of the Kansas Insurgents is going and before he leaves he expects to have a conference with U. S. Senator Bristow and with Congressmen Murdock and Madison, the insurgent chieftains.

Mr. Roosevelt was greatly interested in word that he received on the train that the Kansas Republicans in party council at Topeka had clashed over an endorsement of the Taft administration. He was informed that Senator Bristow had openly declared himself against the council approving of the removal of Gifford Pinchot as chief forester, and of the railroad bill passed by the late Congress.

HERO OF POND TRAGEDY WAS MAN OF MEANS

The body of the unknown hero, who lost his life Monday afternoon in Jamaica pond in a vain attempt to pull from the treacherous waters Mrs. Catherine Hogarty, who had plunged in to save the life of her baby, still lies at the City Hospital morgue unidentified, although several persons have called to attempt identification.

In the pockets of the dead man was found $60 in cash, in addition to a gold watch. The police believe that he was a man of means, but eccentric, which accounts for his being found without stockings.

A movement had been started to obtain money with which to pay the expenses of the burial, thus saving his body from Potter's Field, but the valuables found on him will defray all expenses of this kind. The body will probably be kept for some time for identification.

The man was about sixty-five years old, weighed 170 pounds, and was about five feet seven inches tall. He was smooth shaven, wore a brown suit, straw hat, soft shirt and black shoes without stockings.

NEW DEMURRAGE LAW IN EFFECT ON OCT. 1

On October 1 next, the Boston & Maine and other New England railroads will adopt the code of uniform car service and demurrage regulations sanctioned by the National Association of Railroad Commissioners and approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The new regulation allows forty-eight hours of free time for the unloading or loading of freight cars, instead of ninety-six as formerly, but the new rule is modified by a clause providing that free-time is computed from the first 7 a. m., after the shipment is upon free delivery tracks. No demurrage charge will be made when it is impossible to move freight to or from cars without damage to the goods. Neither will the demurrage charges be assessed when shipments are so frozen that they cannot be unloaded in the free-time, or when high water or snow drifts prevent shippers or consignees from getting to cars.

MISS RANDOLPH WINS AN 8-MILE RACE ON HORSE

NARRANGASETT PIER, Aug. 31.—For diversion in the open, Narragansett Pier had a paper chase over the meadows and through the woodland of Wildfield farm. Earl Hopping, mounted on a fleet stepping pony led the chase and was given fifteen minutes' start over the contestants.

Miss Emily Randolph, daughter of P. S. P. Randolph, who has won many honors in open air sports this summer at Narragansett, was the winner of to-day's chase and outdistanced all competitors. The course was an eight-mile run over wild country and through thick brush and woodland. Miss Randolph rode her pony astride and wore a gray riding costume and Panama hat.

Miss Randolph arrived at the finish ten minutes ahead of all riders in the race. Among others who rode were Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Rathborne, Miss Marguerite Prescott, Henry W. Harrison, Mrs. Robert E. Strawbridge, Joseph B. Thomas, Jr., and Philip Randolph, Jr.

Hollister's neck was broken in an accident a year ago. In spite of this handicap he lifted the beehive, bees, honey and all, with dexterity. But the theft was traced to him.

DR. ELY FINED $10 FOR AUTO SPEEDING

QUINCY, Aug. 31.—"By going forty miles an hour in your automobile you were not only violating the laws of the Commonwealth, but placing your own life in danger," said Judge Avery in the police court to-day when he found Dr. Theodore Ely of Boston guilty of exceeding the speed limit. COLLIDES WITH AN ELEPHANT

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—Details of Professor Carl E. Akeley's encounter with an elephant while hunting game in Africa have been received here. Professor Akeley's letter says:

"You may wonder just what happened when I met the last elephant. Briefly this: He took me by surprise. The herd was some distance in advance in the bamboos, and he was upon me, with one tusk at my chest, before I could raise a gun. I caught the tusk and threw myself between the tusks, grasping one with each hand.

"As I went down he drove his tusks into the ground. Just an instant I saw his vicious eyes, then with a wheeze of rage he surged down and I went to sleep.

"Four and a half hours later I wakened, drenched with the cold mist, buried in blood and ants. One eye fortunately was in service, and I could see a little way off the camp fire and tents of the gunbearers and porters, where they cooked their food and mourned their dead 'bwana.' They had left me to Allah and the hyenas.

"My voice was in good shape, and how the curs did come when I called! They took me in, and during intervals of consciousness I got them to give me whiskey and beef tea."

IT WAS ECZEMA IT WAS RINGWORM

It Spread All Over His Head—If Touched it would Bleed and Leave Raw Spot—Could not Go to School—Spent $200, Still He was Bald.

Got Cuticura. In Six Weeks He was Well and Had Growth of Hair.

"One day, when my boy was five years old, I noticed a sore on the top of his head. I was alarmed, so I called in Dr. —— and he said it was eczema. After treating it for a week it spread all over his head, so the doctor advised us to see a specialist in New York, by the name of ——. He said it was a bad case of ringworm and recommended a student of his. We doctored with him a long while and spent about $200 and the boy's head was still bald. He had a disgusting looking little head. It would scale over night and if you touched it it would bleed and leave a raw spot. All this time he had not been able to go to school, although he was eight years old.

"Then an old druggist named —— said, 'Why don't you take him to the —— Hospital, as they have cured a young lady with the Cuticura Remedies?' But they said the young lady's case had been different. So we decided to try the Cuticura Remedies ourselves. We got Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent and they gave our boy immediate relief with the first application and in six weeks' time he was well and had a growth of hair. Now he is fourteen and has a nicer growth of hair than my other children! The doctors all said he would be bald or his hair would come out in white spots, and several doctors said to take the child to the incurable hospital. We had at least seven doctors and we received no benefit from any. Mrs. Harry Fee, Liberty Corner, N. J., Feb. 25, 1910."

'GIRL CAN'T GET ALONG HONORABLY IN NEW YORK'

Young Woman Who Shot Herself in Hotel Astor Leaves Pitiful Notes.

"It is really deplorable that a girl cannot get along honestly in New York."

"As with King Midas everything turns to gold—so in my case everything turns to failure."

"The force of fate has proven too strong for me to cope with; it has driven me against the wall, and, being defenceless I resort to this cowardly (?) act."

"I hate the insincerity and sordidness and disillusion of life; that is all I've ever met with face to face in the last two years, and now I seek the unknown."—From letters of Miss Vera Fitch, who shot herself at Hotel Astor, New York.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—A shattered romance, it was learned to-day, was a contributory cause in the attempt on her life made by pretty Vera Fitch, the young woman who shot herself at the Astor Hotel amid a fashionable crowd. All doubt of her identity has been swept away with the admission by her family that she is the daughter of the late General Henry Fitch, U. S. A., and sister-in-law of Roy Conger, a nephew of the ex-minister to China.

"She has scarcely a fighting chance to live," said the physicians at the Flower Hospital to-day.

A few days before she fired the bullet into her left side that has brought her near death, the young woman learned that the man who had professed love for her had been paying marked attention to one of her married woman friends. At a luncheon in a well-known restaurant Miss Fitch taxed her admirer with his unfaithfulness, and in spite of his denials produced positive proofs of his deception. When the pair left the restaurant the young woman told her companion that she never wanted to see him again, and left him. She had learned, it is said, that her suitor had been writing to the other woman and saw one of the letters.

Literary Work a Failure.

The shock of this discovery added to her disappointment over her inability to succeed with her literary work, so preyed on her mind that the girl finally resolved to kill herself. After the shooting the girl's admirer was apparently overcome with remorse and visited the hospital several times in an attempt to see Miss Fitch.

Dr. Hughes, house surgeon at the hospital, however, refused the young man admittance, saying that the condition of the young woman was so serious that nobody could see her.

Miss Grace Fitch, as Mrs. Conger, Vera's sister, is known to the stage, has been engaged to appear next week in vaudeville with Dr. Carl Perin, a mystic, as "the Idol Isis."

Had Not Appeared on Stage.

Dr. Hughes gave out the following statement regarding Miss Fitch:

"The young woman in the case is Miss Vera Fitch, daughter of the late Henry Fitch of Oakland, Cal. She has been spending the Summer at Atlantic City and came to New York a few days ago to visit friends. Her father died two years ago. She has talked in a manner which has caused her friends to remark, but which did not give them any alarm as to her mental condition. She was a member of a theatrical company, but has never been on the stage. She was dejected over her literary failures, as her greatest interest was in that field. But she had no other reason which her family can trace for her act. Now that her name is to be published, her mother, who is prostrated, gives out these facts, there being no reason for withholding information any longer. It was hoped that if she lived her identity might remain unknown. Positive identification was made last night by a member of the family."

A Girl of Refinement.

Dr. Hughes said the young woman was refined and evidently well educated.

"I went to the Astor to kill myself because I knew that it was quiet at 10:15 o'clock before the theatre crowds came in," she said.

"Why didn't you send the letters you had prepared? Why was it that they were discovered without any addresses on them?" she was asked.

"I wasn't sure what I was going to do. I made up my mind in a hurry, and I didn't have time to send the letters," she replied.

The letters were found in the waist of her [illegible] were three of these letters. [illegible] was dated August 18, which [illegible]tors to believe that she had [illegible] suicide for some time. [illegible] was apparently signed of them:

Her Sisters.

[illegible] Of course we dis[illegible]s we do on every other [illegible]e have both been headstrong. [illegible]tunately my disposition has been such that I could not always see things as some of my friends have. You never did understand me, nor my way of doing things. Now that our wills are about to clash, you may think more kindly of me. Waiting the last two years, I have several times been tempted to do this, and now I will be successful for the first time in my life in something which I would not undo if I could. It is hard to do this, but still harder not to do it.

Do not grieve for me. Though I have never intentionally said or done an unkind thing in my life, I recognize that my life has been a mistake—a hopeless mistake. Oblivion is what I want. You know how earnestly I tried to help myself and to be independent. And with what success? You, of all others, know that my life has been a failure. I hope and pray the blessings may fall on you like Autumn leaves, and wish you every success. Say good-bye for me to all the other dear ones. I thank you a thousand times for all the kindnesses you have done me. Good-bye, dear. Lovingly, your SISTER.

To an Unknown Friend.

The following letters is to an unknown friend:

Aug. 18, 1910.

Dearest Blanche—You may or may not think me foolish, but I have made up my mind to do it. From the time daddy died I have not had a happy moment. I am accountable for what I do and I am willing to take the chances. The women writers in the New York papers prate a lot of foolish nonsense about these things—they are generally 6,000 miles from the real mark. They very seldom give the real reason for an act such as I am about to commit.

They usually say it was the result of a love affair. In this instance, as you know, love has nothing to do with it. As with King Midas everything turns to gold, in my case everything turns to failure. Think kindly of me. Remember it might not have been so. Mine has been an unhappy life. Think kindly of me, I ask you again. Your sincere friend.

To Her Mother.

Here is the letter to her mother:

Never reproach yourself for what I am about to do. You have been an angel of love to me, and I regret that I cause you this trouble. The force of Fate has proven too strong for me to cope with, and it has driven me against the wall, and being defenceless I resort to this cowardly ? ? ? act.

Then, too, I hate the insincerity, sordidness, and disillusionment of life. That is all I have met with face to face in the last two years. And now I seek the unknown.

I can hear you say, dear, "It is very wrong for one to take one's own life whatever the motive be."

It is really deplorable that a girl cannot get along honorably in New York. In some things I might have succeeded had I conceded to the wishes of men—cultured, yes, usually moneyed, yes, but never moral. I could never submit to such things. Death is preferable.

Ill-fortune has followed me since my father's death. I am working on a book. It will take a year.

Grace Fitch Conger, actress sister of Vera Fitch, who shot herself at Hotel Astor, New York, and Dr. Carl Perin, with whom Grace Fitch appears in vaudeville.

ETHEL LENEVE IN HOSPITAL

LONDON, Aug. 31.—Close on the heels of the collapse of Dr. H. H. Crippen, his co-defendant, Ethel LeNeve, was [illegible]day removed from her cell in the Holloway jail to the hospital. James H. Welfare, her solicitor, secured permission to visit her this afternoon. It was given out that the cause was the same as that which compelled the putting of Crippen in the Brighton jail hospital.

The report that their removal was a ruse to prevent any attempts at suicide and to make sure that the means for such an act could not be smuggled in the food sent by friends was revived when the change was made in the girl's surroundings. In the hospital they have no choice but to eat the hospital fare.

The town has been dubbed "Widowville," and the name is likely to stick, at least through the present season. Word has been received here that a large delegation of foreign noblemen is headed this way with all sail set. Dukes, earls, lords and barons, with a prince or two thrown in, are coming. Mrs. Leeds has written to friends here that she will take personal charge of the decorations of Rough Point, formerly the residence of Mrs. Frederick W. Vanderbilt. Mrs. Leeds's friends have remarked facetiously that she is returning to escape attentions of a regiment of foreigners who are seeking her hand and fortune. If that is so she will arrive in the thick of battle and will be among those present at the auction sale.

URGE U. S. AID FOR ATLANTIC WATERWAYS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 31.—At the opening of the third annual convention of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association in Providence Opera House to-day a vigorous note was sounded for the Atlantic seaboard to be placed at least on equal footing with the Mississippi valley and the Ohio River by Congress and the President.

This was the keynote of the morning session which was called to order at 10:30 by Congressman J. Hampton Moore of Pennsylvania, President of the Association.

The object of the association, as its name implies, is to promote construction of deep water canals to link eventually Florida and Maine.

The morning session went through according to schedule, with the exception of the absence of Congressman Richmond Pearson Hobson, who telephoned that he was en route from St. Louis to New York, when he was stricken by malaria and feared he would be unable to attend. He has forwarded, to be read by the secretary of the convention, his speech on "Inland Waterways as an Aid to National Defence."

Congressman Greene Speaks.

Over 1,500 people were jammed into the opera house when the convention was called to order. After the invocation and the addresses of welcome by Mayor Fletcher and by Governor Pothier, the first response was delivered by Congressman William S. Greene of Fall River, Mass., chairman of the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries. He said in part:

"Next December a plan will be submitted to Congress on the proposed canal from Boston to Narragansett Bay. I should like to see this canal go through Brockton, that city having shown such spirit and interest in the matter."

The second response was by Congressman John H. Small of North Carolina. He cited the wonderful development of the South on account of the extension of waterways system. The railroads, he said, have served their purpose, but have reached their limit.

Before beginning his annual report Congressman J. Hampton Moore, president of the association, read a letter from President Taft in which the latter regretted at being forced to disappoint the delegates by not coming, as he had first promised. The news that the President would not attend the convention was a severe blow to the committee of arrangements. The President, in his letter to-day, referred to his coming trip to Panama having necessitated several changes in his present plans. He wrote that a trip to Panama by the President had always been found to stimulate the work there.

Would Equal Best.

President McCrea of the Pennsylvania Railroad wrote that the impression that the Pennsylvania was against the waterways course was wholly mistaken. Letters of regret were received from Secretary of State Knox, Governor Hughes and others.

President J. Hampton Moore, after reviewing the association's work for the year, cited various benefits to be derived from future plans of the association. He mentioned, as one in particular, a saving of 318 miles of coastwise voyage that could be made by cutting a canal thirteen miles long from Delaware Bay to Chesapeake Bay.

In his speech a few months before Congressman Small had said that the Ohio Valley and Mississippi Valley were favored by presidents and Congress over the Atlantic seaboard. Referring to this grievance, President Moore said:

"The Atlantic seaboard wishes to be placed on an equal footing with the Mississippi Valley and the Ohio River in the favor of Congress and the President. All the Atlantic seaboard asks is simple justice, long delayed."

STANDARD OIL ENCHANTRESS BOSTON GIRL?

The Standard Oil Company's titian-haired enchantress whose beauty and wit are declared to have been responsible for the defeat of F. Augustus Heinze by the "System," the crushing of other rivals of Standard Oil, the making of at least one United States Senator and the averting of a threatened international scandal, is a Boston woman, according to Mrs. Lillian Hobart French of New York. Mrs. French's attack upon Heinze revealed for the first time the remarkable accomplishments of the titian-haired woman. Thomas W. Lawson corroborated much of Mrs. French's story.

Now Mrs. French says the beauty's name is Marie and tells how she learned that Heinze was one of her victims. She says:

"Of course, I knew that Fritz, whom my heart still adores, was awfully susceptible to feminine seductiveness, and so I wasn't a bit surprised one night to hear the whole story at a midnight supper party. Heinze was not present, but the late Charles T. Barney and a lot of Standard Oil capitalists were.

"I think it was Barney who, becoming jovial, told how Heinze spilled all his secrets in the United Copper deal in 1907 to his fair charmer, and that she taxicabbed in a hurry the next morning to No. 26 Broadway, and there let her employers in on the inmost inside. Of course, the [illegible] at the supper were filled with Heinze's predicament.

"I [illegible] it one thing thoroughly understood. I never betrayed Fritz Heinze at any time. Had he remained true to me, I would have made him President of the United States, for we were so well mated that I was of inestimable help to him."

Mrs. French's story of how Heinze was tricked by the red-haired lady is denied by John D. Archbold, vice-president and director in the Standard Oil Company. He says:

"Standard Oil does not employ red-haired sirens in its business. These statements are a tissue of falsehoods, ridiculous upon their face and unseemly. I cannot make my denial of these reports too emphatic. There never has been any basis for these absurdities regarding a woman such as you describe acting as a secret agent for the Standard Oil Company."

WOMAN ROBBED OF DIAMONDS AT NARRAGANSETT

NARRAGANSETT PIER, Aug. 31.—When their amateur sleuthing to locate the missing jewels failed, Mrs. Louis Kaufman of New York and her host and hostess, Dr. and Mrs. Archibald G. Thomson of Philadelphia, appealed to the police to locate Mrs. Kaufman's diamond pin, diamond bracelet and gold purse, valued at $3,000. The valuables disappeared from the dresser in Mrs. Kaufman's room at Bass Rock Farms, formerly the Wanamaker villa, on Ocean road, near Point Judith, now occupied by Dr. and Mrs. Thomson.

Though the theft was first noticed by Mrs. Kaufman Sunday, no report was made to the local police until yesterday.

Chief of Police James D. Caswell of this place has a number of men working on the case to-day. An examination of the premises convinced Chief Caswell that the thief or thieves had effected an entrance into the Thomson cottage by climbing the porch and entering through the window into Mrs. Kaufman's room. The entrance was made late Saturday night or early Sunday morning.

This is the second jewel theft reported to the police here this season. A month ago, the cottage of Irving K. Chase of Waterbury, Ct., was entered and $2,000 worth of jewelry taken.

MONUMENT OF THOMAS B. REED IS DEDICATED

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 31.—The monument which will perpetuate the memory of Thomas Brackett Reed long after all of the present generation will be gone was unveiled on the Western Promenade in this city to-day, an event in which all Maine is interested. Reed was for many years the representative of this district in Congress, and he was regarded as one of the ablest men who ever sat in that body.

In the course of his brilliant review of the life of Mr. Reed, Congressman McCall, the orator of the occasion, told why he had retired from public life at the height of his power. Congressman McCall said:

Opposed to Annexation.

"Just at the end of his public career a new set of issues were coming forward. He was opposed to the annexation of the Sandwich Islands, firmly believing that it was for the interest of the republic to remain a continental power and that it would contribute most effectively to the cause of good government throughout the world by furnishing the example of a well-governed democratic state and by scrupulous respect for the rights of weaker peoples. He was equally opposed to the Spanish War, and used the power of his office, so far as he properly could, to prevent both the annexation and the war.

"Long before the Philippines appeared upon our horizon, he declared in a speech in the House, "that the best government of which a people is capable is a government which they establish for themselves. With all its imperfections, with all its corruptions, it is always better adapted to them than any other government, even though invented by wiser men."

As Speaker of the House.

"The idea that America should violate its traditional principle of self-government and enter upon the work of governing subject States, he hated with all the fierce hatred of a vanishing time. It seemed to him like abandoning the principle which made her unique among the nations. He was profoundly stirred by our taking on "the last colonial curse of Spain," but it had been done by a treaty solemnly ratified by the Senate, and he had come to the parting of the ways.

"His re-election to the Speakership appeared certain, and that office, he once declared, had but one superior and no peer. His mind was never before so ripe. But he was heartsore at the prospect of following the new and opposite line, and he determined to retire to private life. To his near friend, Asher Hinds, he said, 'I have tried, perhaps not always successfully, to make the acts of my public life accord with my conscience, and I cannot now do this thing.' And so he wrote his touching farewell letter to his constituents and withdrew from the public service."

His Great Disappointment.

Congressman McCall said that Mr. Reed was disappointed at not reaching the presidency.

"He had a great ambition," said the orator, "but it was not great enough to lead him to surrender any principle of government which he deemed vital. Like Webster, like Clay and others of our most conspicuous statesmen, he was disappointed at not reaching the presidency, but he could fitly aspire to the office for he was of the fibre and nurture out of which great presidents are made. He probably would not have been a continuously popular President, but our great presidents never have been."

STEAMER AFRICAN KING IS LIBELLED

Assistant United States District Attorney Garland filed a libel to-day in the United States District Court against the steamer African King, which arrived in port last Friday from Kobe, Japan. In his complaint Mr. Garland alleges that Captain C. B. Anderson of the African King failed to obtain a bill of health, as prescribed by law, from United States Medical Officer G. P. Moore, when the steamer left Japan on June 1. The penalty for this violation is a fine of $5,000 and the sale of the steamer.

LILLIAN RUSSELL IS SUED FOR $5,000

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Aug. 31.—William Fitzgerald of this city has started an action to recover $5,000 from Lillian Russel, the actress, for injuries received by being run down by her automobile in this city on August 15.

SWIMMER DENIES TOUCHING NIX'S MATE

Allof Anderle, who claims to have swam to Boston Light last year, has written Eli Pitonof, father of Rose, that he would not attempt the swim this year. Anderle was expected to make a try some time during the coming month, but says that pressure of business prevents him. His record to the Light has been protested, as it was claimed that when he reached Nix's Mate the water was low and he crawled instead of swam. This charge he denies.

KEARNEY HURT IN FLIGHT AT THE NEW FIELD

that the forward control broke the force of the shock to the machine and to his own agility in hopping out when the monoplane struck.

Inspection of the monoplane showed that it was in such bad shape that more than a week, possibly two weeks, will be required to repair it. It was said that there was doubt whether this Pfitzner monoplane, owned by the Burgess company, could be put in shape in time to appear in the meet at all.

The accident was seen by few, the time being so early.

To retain his title of "Wizard of the Air" and still hold the world's record for carrying the greatest number of passengers in an aeroplane, Charles Foster Willard, the Melrose aviator, will attempt to fly his Curtiss machine with six passengers at the Harvard meet.

The big biplane arrived on the field and was partially set up when the report was received from Lille, France, that Louis Breget had taken five passengers into the air in a biplane. Willard was up to that time holder of the world's record, having carried four passengers in a flight on Long Island.

The young man upon hearing the news did not hesitate. He at once ordered a new and stronger set of tires, and ordered his mechanicians to stop the work of assembling the big machine, the largest in the country to-day. "Boys," he said, "we might as well hold that record in this country as long as we can. But if we're going to take six people up at once, the supporting planes must be changed."

Ton Weight to Fly.

He then set to work and outlined to his workmen the changes which will be made. The lower plane will be widened and thus be steadier, even if added weight results. The engine will be thoroughly overhauled and changes made which will give it a quicker explosion. This is made possible because of the damp air at the field. This aids greatly in obtaining a better mixture of the gas in the explosion cylinders.

LYMAN SCHOOL CHANGES URGED BY COMMITTEE

The report of the committee of the House of Representatives appointed to look into the death of John Newman, the Cambridge boy said to have committed suicide at the Lyman School at Westboro, but who, his parents claimed, was beaten to death, was made public to-day, the committee reporting in brief:

That John Newman committed suicide and nobody else was to blame.

That corporal punishment should be continued, but that there had been too many whippings.

That detention rooms should be abolished.

That the boards of trustees of the Lyman School and the Industrial School for Boys at Shirley, be abolished and a new board to manage the reformatory institutions of the State be appointed.

That taking the Lyman School all in all "much credit" is due it.

Calls Flogging Cruel.

Hereafter there is to be no surveillance of boys after they have left the institutions.

To this report, which was signed by Representatives Harry H. Ham, Henry Bond, Zebedee E. Cliff and David C. Ahearn, Representative Cornelius J. Carmody, a member of the committee takes exception so far as corporal punishment is concerned. He wants that done away with. In his report Mr. Carmody says:

"I concur with the other members of the committee with reference to their findings of acts and recommendations, except that I am oblige to dissent from their conclusions as to the necessity for corporal punishment. From the first I have been opposed to flogging, considering it a cruel and ineffective method of punishment. I believe that whipping tends not only to make a boy sullen and resentful, but it tends also to brutalize the master who applies it.

"There is no corrective force in a punishment unless the boy recognizes and admits the justice of it, and the right of the one over him to inflict it. The child admits the right of a parent to whip him, but he resents having any one else usurp that parental right. To his mind it is an act of tyranny, and he lays up in his mind the determination some day to revenge the insult. He often admits that he is at fault, that he is guilty of the offence; but he can never bring himself to justify the administration of the lash upon his body by any person not his parent.

Appeal to Boy's Heart.

"The argument is often made that the abolition of corporal punishment in public institutions necessarily means the substitution of some other form of punishment far more cruel and injurious to the boy. This argument has little weight with me, for I find myself unable to understand why such a substitution is necessary. There is in every boy's heart a place which can be reached, if only those in charge of him have the ability to reach it.

"That is the whole problem—to awaken a spirit of manliness, a spirit of self-respect, an ambition to assume a place of respectability with other boys growing into manhood. Awaken in his mind a readiness to reason. During his period of sullenness is not the time to talk with him. Give him an opportunity to work out the problem in his own mind apart from others, and then when he is composed appeal to his manhood, and on this appeal I can conceive of no place for corporal punishment. I therefore recommend its abolition in the corrective institutions of Massachusetts, as it is being abolished by advanced municipalities in the public schools."

PLAN PAGEANT TO AID 1915 CAMPAIGN

"From Cave Life to City Life" is the title of a dramatic pageant which is to be presented in Boston in November. The affair will be a part of the "Civic Advance Campaign" of the 1915 movement, and will be given on the evenings of November 10, 11 and 12, with two matinees. Miss Letta A. Clark is the director of the pageant and the business arrangements are in charge of John W. Debruyn, who had charge of the arrangements for the safe and saner Fourth of July.

GUILD TO TAKE BIG PART IN CENTENNIAL FETES OF MEXICO

Former Governor Curtis Gould, Jr., will leave for New York, to-night, to head a party bound for Mexico City, where the former Governor will represent the United States as special ambassador at the Mexico Centennial celebration, next month. The honor of special ambassador was conferred upon Mr. Guild by President Taft. The Centennial will be observed with elaborate ceremony in Mexico City. As the representative of Mexico's sister republic and next door neighbor, Mr. Guild will be a prominent figure in the Centennial exercises.

The party will leave New York to-morrow. In the party will be Senator Lee S. Overman of North Carolina, Senator Simon Guggenheim of Colorado, Senator Crawford of South Dakota, Congressman David J. Foster of Vermont, Congressman William M. Howard of Georgia, J. Sloat Fassett of New York and former Governor Franklin Murphy of New Jersey.

In the party will also be the Mexican commission appointed by President Taft, consisting of Harrison Grey Otis of Los Angeles, Alexander Rook of Pittsburg and Justice James W. Gerard of New York.

Whole Month's Celebration.

The celebration will last the whole month of September. It will be in memory of the revolution of just one hundred years ago, in which Mexico won her independence through the leadership and bravery of Father Miguel Hidalgo, Mexico's first and greatest champion of liberty.

During September, each day will see some new event to honor the brave men who died in the cause of freedom a century ago. Monuments will be unveiled, new public buildings will be dedicated, there will be parades and bull fights, literary and athletic contests, as well as banquets and receptions on all sides.

Mexico will be the centre of the globe for the month. Every civilized country in the world will be represented by special embassies, and foreign warships will be present in the harbors on both Pacific and Atlantic coast.

France, Germany and China have signified their intention of presenting lasting memorials to Mexico. France will return to the republic of which Porfirio Diaz is president the silver keys given to the French on their entry into the capital city. Germany will erect a monument to the great Humboldt. China's offering will be a surprise.

Asylum Memorial.

President Diaz will formally open the Centennial on Thursday by dedicating a new general insane asylum at Mexico City. On the next day a hygiene exposition will be opened under the auspices of the Superior Board of Health of Mexico. The government has pursued the policy of building permanent structures in honor of the centennial, and making permanent improvements.

September 1 is to be one of the biggest days of the month. On this day, one hundred years ago, Aldama, a Mexican patriot, arrived at the home of Father Hidalgo in Dolores and informed him that a conspiracy against the Spanish government had been discovered. The priest was later executed. His memory will be fittingly observed by a dedication on the 16th of a monument to independence on the Paseo de la Reforma by President Diaz, during which the proclamation will be read.

In the parade that will follow 10,000 troops will take part, as well as the representatives of foreign nations.

In connection with the centennial will be the congress of Americanists on September 8, the inauguration of the water works on September 13, the laying of the cornerstone of the new legislative palace by President Diaz and the Minister of Public Works on the 23d, and the dedication of the reconstructed tunnel of Tequiquiac.

Guild Speaks Often.

Former Governor Guild will make a number of addresses in Spanish during the month. He was selected by President Taft as special ambassador because of his fitness for the task of further harmonizing the United States and Mexico in carrying out the policy begun by President Taft when he greeted President Diaz over the Rio Grande at El Paso. Mr. Guild speaks Spanish fluently.

The century that has passed has wrought a wonderful change not only on Mexico but on the world. In the progress of the Mexican republic can be found an instance of remarkable change and growth. Since 1810 Mexico has won true greatness and admiration in the arts of peace.

Unlike the American Revolution, the struggle for independence in Mexico was not directly impelled by colonial oppression, and this notwithstanding the fact that American grievances were mild and inconsiderable compared with what the Mexican populace had suffered since the conquest in 1521.

Class differences there made a situation quite dissimilar to that in New England. In the country, as still to only a slightly less extent, lived the unamalgamated, aboriginal stock—Indians, so-called, though of a far higher degree of civilization than we are accustomed to associate with the word. In the cities lived the descendants of the conquerors, pure Spanish and half caste, or Creole.

Under Heel of Aristocracy.

[illegible]vernment offices in colonial times [illegible] held almost exclusively by the old [illegible]nish aristocracy, corresponding to the [illegible]es, who preserved all the distinguishing character of their race, and naturally [illegible] faltered in allegiance—not to the [illegible] day, when many of the splendid families still reside in their ancestral [illegible]ates, uncorrupted and unchanged.

As for the Creoles, so far as they were engaged in commerce, and were landowners, loyalty to the crown was all to their interest. The only part of the population, therefore, from which revolt could be expected was the rural, or Indian. This, although, comprising the great mass of the Nation, was so completely under the heel of the aristocracy and so permeated with the control of a Spanish clergy that there would have been not even a distant prospect of revolution in 1810 had it not been for the opportunity offered by the commotion in colonial affairs resulting from the Peninsula War and the overthrow of the Spanish monarchy by Napoleon.

Disloyalty to Spain only arose at a time when there was no crown in Spain to be loyal to. The declaration of independence in Mexico and other Spanish-American provinces was only the outmost ripples of the Napoleonic tumult in Europe; change of government here was as much due to Bonaparte as in Sweden and Holland.

The prevalent feeling was, as in the mother country, one of immense loyalty to Ferdinand VII. On the 14th of July, 1808, the ship Ventura arrived at Verra Cruz from Cadiz with news of the coup d'etat at Bayonne and the renunciation of Ferdinand. The sensation was profound. The throne was vacant; what was to become of the colony? Hardly had the first excitement subsided when news arrived on the 28th of the same month of the uprising of all Spain against Napoleon.

It was received with the utmost enthusiasm. In the streets processions and general festivity, rich mingled with poor, Spanish with Creole; never had the elements of discord been so completely harmonized.

Conspiracy Formed.

A conspiracy was formed under the leadership of the most prominent member of the Spanish commercial class in the city, Don Gabriel de Yermo. On the night of September 15, 1808, an attack was made on the palace, the Viceroy was arrested, and sent back a prisoner to Spain.

On the 25th of August, 1810, the vessel arrived at Vera Cruz bearing the successor of Inturrigaray, appointed by the regency, Don Francisco Xavier Venegas. With him were titles and grants whose distribution seemed to indicate that they were but awards to the chief actors in the conspiracy that deposed Iturrigaray.

Most noticeable among the Mexicans was the dignified, tall, gray-haired Don Miguel Hidalgo, curate of the neighboring village of Dolores. The other principal figures in the light of history were Capt. Miguel Allende and the soldiers Aldama and Abasolo.

It was in the night of September 15, 1810, that Alamada learned of the preparations under way for the arrest of the conspirators, and rode post haste to meet Hidalgo at Dolores. The tocsin was sounded from the little village belfry, and in raising aloft the patron image of the Virgin of Guadalupe the standard of revolt was set up in Mexico.

Resistance was first offered by the loyalists at Guanajuato the 28th of September, but was overcome after the stubborn siege of the Alhondiga, and the city surrendered to unbridled rapine and carnage, over which the intelligence and humanity of the generals had no control.

From Guanajuato the army passed on toward the capital. As it approached the city it numbered not less than 80,000 men, among whom, however, there were said to have been not more than 1,000 muskets.

The two armies met in the highlands that form the Western barrier of the valley of Mexico on the morning of October 30. The loyalists were unable to withstand the furious onset of the Indian battalions and were completely dispersed in the memorable victory called the Battle of Las Cruces.

Hidalgo's Retreat.

Thence Hidalgo crossed the mountains and descended as far as the village of Cuaximalpa. Here the victorious troops halted. Beneath them, in plain view, lay the great city, an easy prey, practically defenceless and in the panic of unpreparedness. The natural consequence of victory would have seemed the triumphal march upon the army's objective point and its enforced capitulation, but Hidalgo failed to take the fruits of his victory.

A trained and powerful army of Spaniards and Creoles, under the command of Don Felix Calleja, was already marching to the assistance of the city while Hidalgo faltered about it. Learning of his retreat, they immediately set off with reinforcements in pursuit. The first defeat of the insurgents was at the battle of Aculco, in which the loss was some 10,000 men. Hidalgo retreated upon Guanajuato and thence fell back upon Guadalajara. At the battle of Puente de Calderon, the 17th of January, 1811, the patriot army was completely routed, its remnants pursued and slaughtered by the thousands.

FIGHTING ACTRESSES DESTROY FINERY

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—A lively fight between two young and expensively gowned women on the sidewalk in the theatre district drew a large and appreciative crowd, and lasted till the hats and coiffures of both combatants had been demolished and their lace dresses rendered much lacier than they had been when the fight began.

A policeman found the pair clawing industriously at one another. Both were weeping profusely. They said they were actresses, playing in the same company.

The bodices of their gowns were so badly torn that the police provided jackets for them to wear to night court.

RIVER PIRATES ROB CREW.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 31.—Three river pirates, who declared they were custom inspectors, boarded the steamer Shawmut at Reed street wharf on the Delaware river and proceeded to relieve the Norwegian crew of all their valuables.

DRAPER GIVES A WARNING TO REPUBLICANS

Governor Draper admits that the Republican party of Massachusetts has a fight on its hands in the State campaign this year. Although he expressed no alarm at the present outlook, he warned the members of the Essex Club, at whose dinner, at the Corinthian Yacht Club, he was a guest, that the party has a great work cut out for this Fall and that the fight at the polls will be bitterly waged. Governor Draper said in part:

"In the last thirty years I have never seen the Republicans of Massachusetts meet together with the spirit of aggressive support of the party that I have seen this year. That means that we realize we have a fight on our hands, and when we have a fight on hand the spirit of the militant Republicans of Massachusetts comes to the front, and they meet the issue squarely and successfully.

"We don't go into this campaign with the idea that everything is our way, but are going into it to work for the principles which we believe are best for the people of this commonwealth. We have great work cut out for us this year."

Senator Lodge, who also spoke, said, in referring to President Taft's letter to Chairman McKinley of the Congressional committee: "It is an admirable letter, setting forth with great ability the concrete issue with respect to the tariff on which Republicans must stand in the present campaign."

Other speakers were Lieutenant Governor Frothingham and John Hays Hammond. The Lieutenant Governor commended Governor Draper's record. Mr. Hammond made an appeal to the young men of the party and predicted victory all along the line if they did their part.

BIG SENSATION IN $4,000,000 COTTON CRASH

MOBILE, Ala., Aug. 31.—Revelations which will create a sensation on both sides of the Atlantic are expected when the results of the federal investigation now being made into the Knight, Yancey & Co. $4,000,000 cotton failure are laid before the Grand Jury.

It was learned here to-day that the post office inspectors who have been working on the case have almost completed the task of securing the desired evidence and the results will be laid before the Grand Jury when it meets on the first Monday in November.

The United States District Attorney has been co-operating with the postoffice inspectors, but the work has been kept secret as far as possible, the only statement made to-day being a refusal to deny that the case would go to the Grand Jury.

It is known, however, that more than a score of witnesses have been secured to tell of the firm's operations and the manner in which they sent bills of lading to Liverpool, where cotton dealers lost $2,000,000, a big crash being averted only by concerted action when the Knight-Yancey firm went to the wall last April.

Predictions of at least half a dozen indictments were made to-day by those who followed the case in all its ramifications. There is much general speculation as to the outcome, but the general opinion holds that criminal prosecutions will follow.

Soon after Knight, Yancey & Co. went to the wall, the charges of fraudulent practices in the European trade were made, and on April 22 it became known that twenty-six Liverpool firms, and probably as many more elsewhere in England and on the continent, had been hard hit by the fraudulent use of bills of lading.

Liverpool merchants had purchased in all more than 25,000 bales of cotton and 14,000 had been sold elsewhere in England, receiving the bills of lading for them, although it is charged no cotton was shipped.

SISTERS TOGETHER AFTER 25 YEARS

BROCKTON, Aug. 31.—For the first time in twenty-five years, Mrs. George Oliver of St. Johns, Newfoundland, met her sister, Mrs. Edward Farrell, at the home of the latter, No. 24 Banks street. So long had the sisters been apart that Mrs. Farrell failed to recognize her sister, and the recognition was only brought about when little fourteen-year-old Katherine Farrell remarked to her mother, "Mamma, this must be my aunt, she looks so much like you."

Mrs. Oliver came from Newfoundland only recently and has since been employed at Beverly. She came to Brockton unannounced, as she wished to give her sister a surprise.

SOCIALISTS WAR OVER VOTE POWER

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 31.—The International Socialist Bureau has turned down the Socialist Labor party's claims to equal representation with the Socialist party in America. The bureau ruled that the Socialist Labor party was entitled to but one vote.

The committee on disarmament and international arbitration recommended that an incessant agitation on behalf of the cause be kept up, and urged action to this end by the parliaments of the world.

HIGGINSON ON ROYALTIES FOR WATER POWER

Henry L. Higginson, the Boston banker, in an article in the September issue of the World's Work, says that he thinks that the United States, or a State, should receive a royalty for the use of water power, if the water power is worth it.

In introducing Mr. Higginson's discussion of the subject the magazine stated that the National Conservative Association has proposed that four provisions be incorporated into all future grants of water-power rights by State or nation.

The World's Work presented these recommendations to Major Higginson, whose banking house has made possible many water power developments. He made the following comments.

Pin Faith in Future.

"I think the United States or a State which grants the use of its water power may fairly ask for a royalty if it seems worth while to do so. In many cases the builders of dams or the users of water cannot afford to pay anything for this right. In many cases the enterprises have found that the cost of dams, canals, etc., was too great to allow profitable use of capital even when no such royalty was paid.

"I know of three water powers, two of which may pay some day, but which will not now pay even a fair return on their cost. I know a third which will pay interest on the cost of the work, though at only a moderate rate. Probably in each case these water powers will do better in the future than at present, else they certainly would not be worth touching.

"(a) 'Prompt development on pain of forfeiture of the grant.' Sometimes the enterpriser can develop promptly, and sometimes not. Physical difficulties, which are entirely unforeseen, arise; financial difficulties arise in the same way. I know of one fine water-power where much more money was needed than was anticipated (the estimates had been made by several first-rate engineers of wide experience), and the call for more money came in the Fall of 1907. Many of the investors could not put up more money without serious loss or inconvenience. It would have been unjust to make them forfeit what they had already put in.

Reasonable Compensation.

"(b) 'Payment of reasonable compensation for the benefits granted by the people, with periodic readjustment of the rate of compensation, so as to insure justice both to the investor and to the public.' This clause appears just, and may be so. One must depend upon the judges. Usually United States officers or State officers regard but one side and are hard on the enterprisers. They do not know the difficulties, and are apt to conceive that the enterprisers are not honest.

"(c) 'The limitation of all such grants to periods not exceeding fifty years, and reservation of the right to terminate and reconvey the grant for proper cause and upon equitable compensation; together with proper inspection and publicity of records and accounts. If an enterpriser builds a water-power under these conditions, he must get back all his money with a handsome rate of interest in fifty years, else he would be a fool to touch the enterprise. If the Government reserves the right to terminate the grant at any time, he would be a fool to touch it at all. Proper inspection and publicity of records and accounts are wise and fair.

"(d) 'Recognition of the right of appropriate public authorities to make reasonable regulations as to the rates of service.' Here, again, it depends upon the public officers, as they decide whether the regulations are reasonable or not.

CIVIC ADVANCE CAMPAIGN HERE IN NOVEMBER

A "Civic Advance Campaign" [illegible] be conducted in this city from Nove[illegible] 11 to 21 by those interested in the [illegible]n-1915 movement. One event planne[illegible] is the presentation of a dramatic pageant called "From Cave Life to City Life."

This will be given on the evenings of November 10, 11 and 12, as well as at matinees, to which delegates from schools in Greater Boston will be admitted free of charge. Miss Lotta A. Clark is director of the pageant and John W. Da Bruzn is business manager. A preliminary organization is preparing for the production, and it includes the following committees:

The Committees.

Organization committee — Edwin D. Mead, Dr. Colin A. Scott, F. Chouteau Brown, Mabel Hill, Fannie Fern Andrews, Dr. David D. Scannell, Allen Lowe, Will C. Eddy, Vesper L. George. Advisory committee—William Orr, James O. Lyford, Rev. Thomas I. Gasson, S. J., Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Mrs. Mary F. Chapman, Walter Gilman Page, James B. Noyes, Solomon Lowenberg, Ralph Davol.

Those in charge of the pageant will seek the assistance of high school pupils and other young persons in the metropolitan district, and it will be presented in the Boston Arena, which has a floor space where 1,500 performers can appear and seating capacity for 4,000 spectators. During the period November 14 to 19 a series of meetings will be held throughout Greater Boston to solicit the co-operation of every citizen in the movement, and the ablest speakers on civic questions who can be enlisted will be heard. During the two Sundays included in the days of the period of the campaign the churches will be asked to aid.

Conference of Mayors.

It is also proposed to hold a conference of the Mayors and officials from New England cities to consider problems in practical municipal administration. All New England Mayors have been asked if they would be interested and would accept an invitation to attend. Mayor Gaynor may make the closing address. It is expected that the New England Commercial Club will hold a meeting in Boston at the same time. The National Vocational Bureau will hold its annual session in Boston during the week of these meetings, and it is hoped that the Society for the Promotion of Industrial Education will also then meet in this city.

KILLS ALL FISH IN BROOK WITH LIME

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 31.—The Commissioners of Inland Fisheries and Game recently received a complaint that the fish were all dead in a certain brook in the town of Perry, some substance evidently having been placed in the brook for this purpose.

Warden H. O. Templeton, who investigated, found the brook nearly covered with lime, which had been put in by some poacher of the worst kind.

FUTURITY DAY AT READVILLE GRAND CIRCUIT

FEATURES ON CARD AT READVILLE

American Horse Breeder's Futurity for three-year-old trotters, and pacers for purses amounting to $10,000.

Colorado E., world's champion, a starter in trotting Futurity.

The 2:08 pace, with Asa Wilkes the choice and 2:12 pace, with Bervaldo the favorite.

the marvelous ability of the great Colorado E. and Native Belle. Colorado E. rules a strong favorite for to-day's event.

Only Three Pacing Colts.

Upon the pacing side of the American Horse Breeders' Futurity there are but three candidates left among the three-year-olds, from a most impressive list.

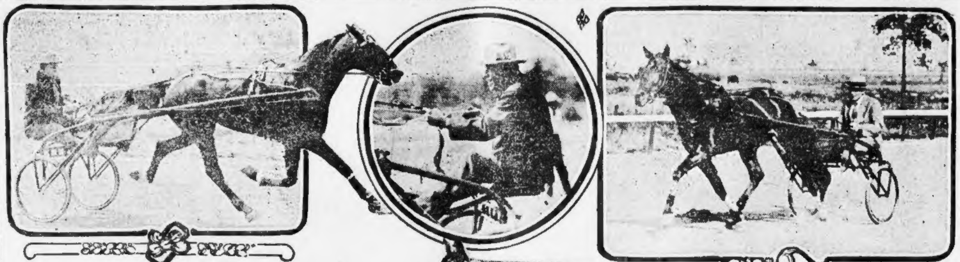
Hughey Milam's fine black three-year-old colt, Directum Regent, by Directum Miller, starts to-day, and is the swell futurity colt of the race, for his breeding is of the best and he has shown himself as a futurity pacing colt a 2:10 proposition from every angle of the game at Readville.

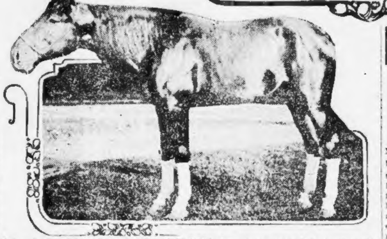
Nell Gentry, by John R. Gentry, and Leftwich, by Moko, are other candidates for the pacing futurity, but seems to have no slightest chance against either of the cracks, Twinkling Dan or Directum Regent.

John W. Coakley's clever chestnut stallion Asa Wilkes (2:09½), by Roan Wilkes, should have little trouble in taking Dillon Queen, Big Boy, Caffeene and Beauty Wilkes into camp in the 2:08 pace. The old favorite of the New England twice arounds has the speed of to-day's party, and should lower his present record.

The 2:12 trot should be a corker, with Bervaldo, Senator Hale and Myrtle Granette the real contenders. The majority of the horsemen here like Bervaldo, but the race should be one of the closest carded for the present week. There is great interest in the performance of Senator Hale, now five years old, but who has done practically no racing since he obtained his present mark of 2:20¼ as a two-year-old.

Fastest 3-Year-Old Trotters Racing at Readville To-day; Ed Geers, the Dean of Reinsmen, and Famous Pacer, The Abbe





Colorado E., for whom an offer of $50,000 has been rejected, is favorite for the Futurity and is opposed by Native Belle, shown on the left, the champion as a two-year-old. Ed Geers is in the centre above, and at the right his celebrated converted pacer, The Abbe, unbeaten this year, which is favorite in the Norfolk Stake Friday.

'POP' ED GEERS GRAND OLD MAN OF THE SULKY

Ed F. Geers, grand old man of the sulky, for thirty years a daring and successful driver on the Grand Circuit, is still manipulating the reins with greater skill than any of his younger rivals. The running turf has had its Garrisons, its Dare Devil Fitzpatricks, its Isaac Murphys and its Tod Sloans scattered through all the years Geers has been a figure on trotting tracks, and there would easily be a dozen named in answer to the query: "Who was the greatest jockey of all time?"

But the trotting turf has had one particular luminary, outshining all its other stars—Ed. Geers. Truly, this old gentleman is sui generis.

An expert who has watched Geers in action pays him this tribute:

"Geers' style of driving is peculiarly his own. No other man has ever been seen who exercised such control over his horses with so little apparent effort. He sits immovable in the sulky, no matter what the crisis, never raising his hands, spreading his arms, bracing himself by lying back in his seat, or in any way showing the employment of any particular physical force.

"Only on rare occasions does he touch his horse with the whip, and then with mere taps, even in an eyelash finish. For twenty years or more the Tennessee trainer has made a practice of falling back at the start and bringing his horse up with a well-timed drive in the last quarter of a mile to win by a head or a neck in the final strides. By letting the other horses breast the resistance of the atmosphere and form a wind shield for his own, Geers probably won hundreds of heats before anybody woke up to the fact that he was taking advantage of an unseen but important factor of speed which has lately been shown to mean four or five seconds to the mile."

While "Pop" Geers has handled many remarkable harness horses, none, perhaps, was more wonderful than The Abbe, with which the Silent Man has won seven straight victories this season. The Abbe until this year was known as a trotter. He was marked low and had not the speed to compete in fast events.

When The Abbe had outlived his usefulness as a trotter Geers converted the stallion into a pacer. Though The Abbe took to the sidewheel gait only this season, he became such a pronounced success at his new style that he is already marked at 2:04.

HORSEMEN ARE ENTERTAINED BY DRIVING CLUB

The members of the Boston Gentlemen's Driving Club right royally entertained the visiting horsemen and invited guests by an old-fashioned clambake, with all the necessary "fixin," upon the lawn at Readville at the conclusion of the races yesterday afternoon.

Justin Edwards, secretary of the executive committee, prepared a capital post-prandial program after a typical New England clambake dinner had been served in the best order, and which was immensely appreciated by the visiting horsemen, especially those who came from the inland States.

After the tables had been cleared, Mr. Edwards, as the toastmaster of the dinner, presented Colonel A. C. Drinkwater, who in most entertaining fashion presented the just claims in behalf of the stallion sires of New England, and the place our people have taken in the development of the breeding industry, and the placing at the best estate of our horse interests.

Walter Cox, in behalf of the visiting reinsmen, in a felicitious speech, extended the thanks of the horsemen now in our midst for the hearty welcome vouchsafed the Grand Circuit followers.

John Shepard, Boston's most famous reinsman, extended the greetings of the club, and in a most happy after dinner speech brought down the house at the close by declaring that his years beyond the allotted three score and ten had been saved for him in the possession of driving horses and the opportunity to enjoy the sunlight and the open.

Bert Shank of North Randall, O., said a few words of greeting, and was followed by George H. Esterbrook of Denver, Col., who made one of the happiest speeches of the evening in declaring the West's appreciation of the Eastern horsemen.

The "good night" was presented by General Nelson A. Miles of Washington, D. C., who in a most happy vein extolled the good merits of the horsemen, and the great part the development of the breeding industry has had in New England. The grizzled warrior was in particularly happy vein, and received a most tumultuous welcome as he rose to address the company.

Later in the evening a musical program was given at the club house under the direction of Harry Farren, and a cap'tal evening enjoyed by the guests of the occasion.

TWINKLING DAN SO LAME HE IS OUT OF FUTURITY

Twinkling Dan, the great three-year-old son of the champion, Dan Patch, 1:55¼, is so lame he will be unable to start in the pacing division of the American Horse Breeder's Futurity to-day at Readville.

Toddestill, by Todd, dam Lady Estill, by Golden Slope, will be an added starter in the pacing futurity. He is owned by C. H. Wheelock of Auburndale.

MORAN EXPECTS TO BEAT KRAMER

"Yes, I think I have a good chance to beat Frank Kramer in our match race at the Revere track Saturday night," said Jimmy Moran, the all-around bike champion to-day. "It's this way," said Jimmy, "Goullet beat Kramer in a three-heat match and I beat Goullet so that I ought to be able to take Kramer's measure though I know that he is a wonderful sprinter and is one of the wisest riders in the game."

Moran will take no chance of being beaten and is doing a couple of workouts daily on the saucer track at Revere and it's always a safe bet the Chelsea man is in shape when he has to race for his reputation.

BOSTON YACHTS AT SEA GATE

Three of the fastest thirty-one-raters around Massachusetts Bay start to-day in a series of yacht races at New York as a team representing Boston against New York, in the intercity races of the Atlantic Yacht Club at Seagate.

The three Boston boats are Mavourneen, owned by George Lee; the Amoret, owned by H. G. Wheelock, and the Timandra, owned by John B. Fallon.

The Cara Mia, Windward and Mimosa III, represent New York. This series of races promises to be one of the most interesting of the season. Of the Eastern boats Amoret has made the best record this year. She won the Lipton cup for her class. In that series the records are: Amoret, 11 starts, 9,333 points, percentage .848; Mavourneen, 15 starts, 12,318 points, percentage .821; Wianno, 12 starts, 6,600 points, percentage .550; Timandra, six starts, 2,400 points, percentage .308; Onda II., six starts, 2,283 points, percentage .285.

In the series for the championship Mavourneen won with a percentage of 898, Amoret, .583; Wianno, .472; Onda II., .292; Timandra, .055.

Amoret and Mavourneen have met in fourteen races and in these Amoret has finished nine times ahead of Mavourneen. The three Eastern yachts have met in seven races during the season and of these Amoret won four, Mavourneen two and Timandra one.

Twenty-five races were sailed by the P boats during the year in Eastern waters. Amoret has 13 firsts, 2 seconds, 4 thirds, and a fourth to her credit out of twenty starts. Mavourneen has 8 firsts, 10 seconds and 2 fourths; Wianno, 3 firsts, 8 seconds, 7 thirds and 2 fourths; Timandra, 1 first, 3 seconds, 3 thirds and 2 fourths and Onda II., 2 seconds, 2 thirds, 1 fourth and 1 fifth. Amoret and Mavourneen have sailed very evenly in light winds, but in fresh to strong winds Amoret has shown the better. Timandra is at her best in very light weather. These three were built from designs by George Owen, who will sail Timandra. She was built last year. Amoret and Mavourneen are this year's boats.

Th Mavourneen raced here for the Manhasset Bay cup and was beaten by Windward and Cara Mia. She showed that she was a smart craft, though, and the series promises to be a very close one.

FIREMAN TEAMS ON DIAMOND

Hope no holocaust starts in town on Saturday, for that's the day of the big clash between the New York and Boston fireman ball teams at the Huntington avenue grounds, and all the fire laddies who can be spared will be up at the field to root for the home club, besides a few thousand live fans who know what to expect when the rival teams get going in the second contest of the year.

The Boston team is out for revenge, as they were beaten in Manhattan and the Gotham department is claiming all kinds of championships now as a result of the victory.

Chief Edward F. Crocker of the New York fire department is coming over to see that his men get used right, and it is expected that Mayor Fitzgerald will toss out the new ball to start something.

Manager Maloney and Captain Truesdale of the Boston team have been hard at it to have the Hub nine well oiled up for the fray, so that no second alarms need to be sent out from the grounds if the visitors prove a bit tough and the team is certainly on edge for some grueling work.

As the team is provided with four pitchers, it looks safe from the battery standpoint, as there are four backstops to support the artillery.

The Boston team will christen their new uniforms on the occasion, and they will not want to have them hoodooed by a defeat on the first parade.

BLUES BEAT REDS ON THE POLO FIELD

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 31—Two of the English polo players, Rich and Gill, played on the "Blues" in the second of the week's special polo matches at the Winchester Club, helping them to win their game from the "Reds." The final score was "Blues," 9¾; "Reds," 6¾. There were few features to the game. The "Blues" were made up of E. L. Morgan, Jr., H. Rich, F. A. Gill and F. H. Prince, Jr., and the "Reds," of Norman Prince, H. Drury, F. H. Prince and W. G. Loew.

M'KINNON TO FIGHT MANTELL

Bill McKinnon, of this city, and Frank Mantell of Pawtucket meet in an important bout scheduled to take place Monday at the Coliseum, Lake Massebesic. The club has made arrangements for special cars from Nashua, Lowell and Lawrence to the lake. The Concord and Franklin sports are taking advantage of the opportunity offered to see this fifteen-round matinee mill, and Manager Billy Woods is busy filling orders from the fans who will attend.

McKinnon is training in this city with Young Donohue, while Mantell is preparing at Pawtucket. The men are evenly matched, and a hard scrap will be waged.

The Red Sox are up against the hardest battle of the week at the Huntington avenue grounds this afternoon. Flushed with the victories of eight straight games, in which St. Louis and Cleveland were wiped from the slate and the White Sox defeated twice, the Speed Boys have but one desire, and that is to clean up the old score with the White Sox and bring the ninth win back to camp. Then on to New York.

But it will be a magnificent fight. Hughey Duffy's men will die hard, and the White Sox manager has saved his best card for the final game. If Boston is beaten, big Ed Walsh is the man who will do the trick, and it is stated on authority that Frank Smith will at last have his chance in the box against the team that sold him. In fact, that's what he came East for, and he will try to show the fans that Boston got the best end of the trade.

Will Ed Walsh fare any better than Scott, White and Lange have in Monday's and Tuesday's games? There are those who say that nothing can stop the wonderful batting streak of the Speed Boys. For a week and a half they have been hitting all over the lot, and home runs, three and two-base hits, have been almost as frequent as singles. No pitcher has yet been able to stand up under such wholesale slaughter. The question is, will Ed Walsh stand it?

For the first time since the exchange was made local fans will have the chance to watch all four men at work. Thus far the choice seems to be about even. Purtell has proved himself to be a fast man on third, and his batting would be hard to improve upon. Then, too, Clyde Engle has been delighting the fans by his clever work on second, and nobody has a kick to register on that score. The real unknown—at least unknown to Boston—is Frank Smith.

Her Hair
Was Thin, So She Couldn't Wear a Large Hat.

It's a big problem nowadays for a woman to get her hat on without wearing an unsanitary "rat." If all women with thin, faded, falling hair would do as Mrs. J. S. Fisher, of Spruce St., Philadelphia, did, they'd soon be happy. Read what she says:

I was never able to wear a large hat until now. The tonic has thickened my hair and is doing a great deal for me. I am only too pleased to be one of the multitude to praise Lorrimer's Excelsior Hair Tonic.

Get Lorrimer's Excelsior Hair Tonic at Riker-Jaynes or any good drug store, and get it while there's still time to improve and save your hair.

TOMMY QUILL IN DRAW BOUT

Tommy Quill of Brockton and Young Loughrey of Philadelphia were awarded a draw by Referee Flaherty in their sixth fight at the Armory Athletic Association last night, and when the decision was given none by the partisans of the fighters had anything to say to the contrary.

The match between the boys was a peach, and it was action all the way. From the bell to the raising of the referee's hand there was something doing all the time. Both boys were in prime condition for such early season work and the feeling between them was shown all the time. The contest meant much to both, for it was the sixth time they have met. Results have been a win for each and four draws. It was a hard fought battle all the way and one of the best contests ever seen at the club and the members were strong for the decision as a body.

The preliminary contests were clean and hard fought with the exception of the first, which was over in less than a round. The first bout scheduled between Joe Coster and Young Wagner of New York ended quickly, and the man who fought under a name other than his own got what was coming to him.

The second preliminary between Young Lorenzo and Tommy Flanagan was a good battle and the decision went to Flanagan. Young Rodman and Pat Rocco battled six hard-fought rounds in which both skill and punching ability and the verdict went to Rodman.

VICTORY FOR BROWN.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 31.—"Knockout" Brown of Gotham defeated Joe Ferguson of Philadelphia in a fast ten-round bout at Convention Hall. The first four rounds were pippins, with the fourth the best of the battle. In that session Brown floored Ferguson four times. The last rounds found both boys tired from their exertions, and they missed oftener than they landed.

ALL-STAR TEAMS WILL DO HARM

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 31.—"It looks very much as if somebody was trying to injure the world's series," said Uncle Ben Shibe, president of the Athletics to-day. "I do not say that we will be in the world's series, but our chances look very good, and I am sorry to see some men outside of baseball trying to put on an excursion for a lot of players who will be out of condition and training after the two major league seasons have closed.

"If they want to play at Shibe Park, however, they will have to give us 50 per cent. of the gross receipts, and I hope all club-owners in organized ball will demand the same rental.

"If the National League champions should be the Chicago "Cubs," they do not finish their season until October 15, and the world's series could not start until October 16, which is a Sunday, in Chicago. The series will require at least seven days to finish, which will bring it up to October 23.

"Still I see that these promoters want to start their proposition on October 15, or at the same time the world's series starts.

"I hope that the National Commission will do all it can to stop this proposition. There would be no team work in any of these contests, as some players have never played with the others before, and, outside of the fact that they are stars, one could not expect as good baseball as from a regular team like the Athletics or the Cubs."

CANADA CHAMP TO BOX FRENCHMAN

Alfie Lynch of Canada, who is now training in Manchester, will meet Nap Dufresne in Lewiston, Labor Day. Dufresne and Lynch have fought several times, and are evenly matched. Kid Ryan of this city will appear in the semi-final with some Lewiston lightweight.

WANTS TO BET DE PALMA WON'T WIN

NEW YORK, Aug 31.—Dan Smith, promoter of the Brighton Beach meet next Saturday and Monday, received the following wire from Barney Oldfield last night:

"I will give outright $500 to any driver who equals or betters my best mile at Brighton Beach, and will also make an outright present to De Palma if he will bring his car to the starting point in one of the free-for-all events either Saturday or Monday, and will further bet him or any of his backers or admirers $1,000 that he will not win a free-for-all contest."

George Robertson, who is entered in the Brighton meet, and who will compete against Oldfield, arrived in the city yesterday from Chicago, where he drove in the Elgin road race. Oldfield will arrive to-morrow morning.

MOTOR BOAT RECORD.

PEORIA, Ill., Aug. 31.—A new world's record for twenty-foot power boats was made by the motor boat Comet, which covered five miles in 11 minutes 6½ seconds.

SOUTHERN GOLFERS TO EN ER NATIONAL MEET

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 31.—Once before in golfing history a team of Southern players invaded the national amateur championship. On that occasion no especially good showing was made.

This year a stronger and a larger team representing the Southern Golf Association will journey to Brookline, Mass., for the big event of September 12-17.

Heading the team will be present Southern Champion F. G. Byrd of Atlanta. Mr. Byrd planned the tour and is arranging the details.

Two former champions of the South will make the trip—Nelson Whitney, twice a winner, and Leigh Carroll, both of New Orleans. A strong effort will also be made to get J. P. Edrington of Memphis.

WINS 27TH STEEPLECHASE.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 31.—When Jimmy Lane won the steeplechase here he established a record such as no other steeplechase horse in the world has ever accomplished. During his career across country he has won twenty-seven races. He now exceeds by one victory the record previously held by the English horse Onward.

DEAL PLANNED BETWEEN REDS AND DODGERS

CINCINNATI, Aug. 30.—It was learned to-day that a deal is being planned between Brooklyn and Cincinnati, which may be closed within a few days. Lobert and Mitchell are to go to Brooklyn in exchange for Lennox and Burch.

Manager Griffith has not been satisfied with Lobert and needs a third baseman. Lennox was sick during the early Summer, and since his return to the game has not been delivering the work expected of him.

Burch will fill in with the Reds as a good utility man, Griffith being satisfied with McCabe's work in right field. The deal would strengthen the Dodgers at bat, as Lobert and Mitchell are reliable stickers. The Reds would secure a good third-sacker, and this is what Griffith is badly in need of. Should the deal go through the men will not be asked to report to Brooklyn and Cincinnati until next Spring.

NEW YORK RACING ENDS WITH FUTURITY

The futurity race at Saratoga to-day, closing the racing season in New York upon the tracks devoted to the running horse, and bringing one of the greatest two-year-old fields to the post that the country has ever seen aroused wide interest among the talent here in town upon the Rialto, who enjoy a little flyer upon the ponies.

Of the fifteen starters named for the rich classic to-day it looked at noon as if at least a dozen would start, and with the large field embracing all the best futurity colts and fillies, speculation upon the event became most attractive here in town.

Bashti, Novelty, Iron Mask, Naushon and Zeus all had their admirers. A fair list of odds upon the Saratoga Futurity looked to be as follows: Bashti 2 to 1; Novelty, 9 to 5; Zeus, 9 to 5; Naushon, 4 to 1; Iron Mask, 6 to 1; Textile, 10 to 1; Touch Me, 15 to 1; Swannanoa, 15 to 1; Babbler, 20 to 1; Footprint, 20 to 1; Love Not, 20 to 1; Sweepaway, 20 to 1; Blackfoot, 20 to 1; Rockville, 30 to 1; Bouncer, 40 to 1.

STRAIGHT TIPS FOR SPORT FANS

WONDER CAN THOSE RED SOX finish up those White Sox in the last clash. Three straight will just about break our old friend Hugh Duffey all up, but have to overlook the feelings of the other fellows in this final sprint down the home stretch of the race. Big Ed Walsh will be in fighting trim to-day as he got a taste of the stuff looking at Young Loughrey maul with Tommie Quill at the Armory A. A.

IT SEEMS TO BE A RACE BETWEEN Hall, Cicotte and Collins for letting down the opposing teams in the hitting line. Such pitching as these stars have been handing out lately is something startling. Wish they could have done it on that last road trip. Might have made some difference in that space between the team and the Athletics.

ALECK McLEAN HAS ADDED ANother star to his stable of fighters, as Joe Thomas, the California middleweight has tied up with him. "Just put it as strong as you like," says Aleck, "Joe is out to battle all the middleweights and I'll put up $1,000 for a fight with Klaus, Ketchel or any of them."

THE BROCKTON FIGHT FANS GOT A fright last night when their pet, Tommy Quill, was nearly capsized near the end of the bout with the husky Young Loughrey. It was next to the last round that Tommy received a bolt on his jaw and the bell came in very handy before any more damage was done. Tommy put up a game fight but did not show anything on the Quaker.

Straight Tips—I have read with considerable amusement your item in Thursday's paper regarding your boosting and praising of the Doves, and also that next year you shall not help them out any unless they play wonderful ball all season. Having daily looked over your sporting news, I have never noticed where you have said anything of note in favor of the South Enders, and consequently do not see where your withdrawn support can materially hurt their attendance. The Doves are over 100 points higher in standing than they were a year ago, and I think any fair-minded writer would give Fred Lake some credit. Then there is a possibility that Fred Lake knows nearly as much as Straight Tips about baseball and running a team. Think it over. Yours for a good sport, D. C. WHEELER.

All right, Doc. Thought somebody would come across with a wallop like that. Rather lay "them crool words" to your loss of memory than to base ingratitude. However, if you fellows like the kind of baseball the Doves are handing out these past few years, you're welcome. Guess you don't watch the game very close.

Straight Tips: With a man on third a ball is hit to the second baseman. The second baseman throws home, but fails to get his man. Both batter and runner are safe. A bets batter gets a hit. B bets he reaches first on a fielder's choice. Providence. F. L. S.

It is a matter of judgment whether the ball could have been fielded to first base in time to put the batter out. It might have been a hit or a fielder's choice.

Straigat Tips—Where have Mutt and Jeff gone on their vacation? ANXIOUS FOLLOWER UP IN THE "ONION BELT" IN THE CONNECTICUT VALLEY.

Bunk. Happy Hooligan, der Captain, Hans and Fritz, Gloomy Gus, Fedick, Curlock Holmes, Slik Hat Harry and the whole family are on the hunt, as you can see by the pictures. If they can't find 'em I'll give it up.

Straight Tips: Will you please settle this bet? A bets that Sam Langford whips Jack Johnson. B bets he did not. Who wins and where did the fight take place and how many rounds did it last? B. R. R. Newport, R. I.

He hasn't beaten him yet, but has hopes. They fought twelve rounds at Chelsea and Johnson was the winner.

Straight Tips: A bets B that in the game between Boston and Detroit last Saturday that the winning team will get as many runs in one inning as the loser gets in the whole game. The score was Detroit 9, Boston 0. Who wins? A. C. Manchester.

That's pretty easy for A.

PURITY IS THE "SNOW" WATCHWORD

When a store has been in business for 100 years, there must be some established business policy. The policy of our firm ever since we sold the first quart of whiskey to our first customer—away back in 1812—has been to handle only pure goods—whiskey, gin, rum, wine, cordials, sherry or any liquor.

Take our Snow's Special 11-year-old whiskey as an example. It was bred in Old Kentucky, the Blue Grass Country and distilled under government supervision. It has aged in the wood until it's ripe and nutty. A Regular Blue Ribbon Winner in the Whiskey Stakes.

Worth almost any fancy price we might care to put on it—but we are an old-fashioned, cobweb-covered sort of a firm, and the price has been put at $4.75 for a full gallon jug—$1.25 a full quart—65 cents a pint and 35 cents a half pint. Call and get yours.

He Didn't Secure the Five Spot

By KENNETT HARRIS

"YOU and me are pretty good pals, after all, ain't we?" said the bill clerk to the cashier, with an affable smile.

"Yes, Johnny," replied the cashier. "I wouldn't say that Orestes and Pylades or Damon and Pythias, or even Aldrich and the interests, had nothing on us when it comes to friendly feeling, but, as you say, me and you hit it off together fairly well."

"Of course, now and then, when you get too gay, I have to call you down a little," said the bill clerk.

"Naturally," admitted the cashier. "If you didn't, it's likely I would become unbearably familiar. I realize myself that I have to be kept in my place. You have your dignity to maintain, of course."

"Lend your friend money and you lose both friend and money."

"I owe it to myself, sure," said the bill clerk. "All the same, you don't get sore about it. That's what I like in you. I can toss you a few hot ones, once in a while, and you'll never do more than make a few feeble efforts at a comeback. You won't get a grouch like some would. You know that I'm a friend of your's and that what you get is for your own good."

"There's one thing you want to keep in mind, nevertheless," said the cashier. "That is, I am rather obtuse at times. Perhaps not, compared with most people, but in an intellectual contest with you, some of your subtleties get by me. Barbed witticisms that ought to get under my hide and sting me, bounce off without me knowing anything about it. That may explain."

"It's all right about that," declared the bill clerk. "You're a good old sport at that, and you're my friend. That's right, isn't it?"

"Our relations are almost uniformly pleasant, certainly," the cashier admitted.

"Correct," said the bill clerk. "That's what I was coming to. You're my friend and I'm your friend, and friends have got to stand by one another—what?"

"They should do so, Johnny," replied the cashier. "You are undeniably right in that assumption. They should stand shoulder to shoulder, back to back, and side by side, according to the best authorities on the subject. Not all at once, of course, but as circumstances require. I can tell you a whole lot about friendship, Johnny. A friend should be ever ready in the dark hour of trouble to offer sympathy or consolation. That's where I shine, if I say it myself. He should receive confidences and hold them inviolate. If a friend sees his friend taking the wrong course, he should advise him as a friend, even if he knows his advice is unwelcome."

Where He Drew the Line

"You're strong there," said the bill clerk. "I guess you're the best friend I ever had when it comes to that; but I'm right with you on the main points. Go ahead, old top."

"If he sees faults in his friend, he should point them out," proceeded the cashier. "He may be delicate about it, but his language should be unmistakable, free from any ambiguity. He should scorn to flatter."

"Sure," agreed the bill clerk. "At the same time he oughtn't to feel offended if his erring friend hands him a poke in the jaw. Then there's another thing that you haven't touched on: A friend should protect a friend, and if he needs any little pecuniary assistance——"

"Stop right there, Johnny," interrupted the cashier. "That's the way to destroy friendship. 'Lend your friend money and you lose your money and your friend.' I would never imperil the sacred relation by lending a friend money. That is, never again. Not on your life, Johnny, believe me. Don't you think it for a moment."

"Say, you wouldn't be a cheap skate, would you?" said the bill clerk, earnestly. "This is only a five-spot and I'll hand it right back Saturday. Vow, Honest!"

Alias Jimmy Valentine

By JOHN A. MOROSO

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

SYNOPSIS.

JIMMY VALENTINE, the most remarkable cracksman of the age, who opens safes merely by the sensitiveness of his finger ends, has succeeded in robbing the strong vault of the Green National Bank.

He and his pal, Mike Cotton, get away to Buffalo with $25,000, and double back on their tracks to New York. In the Pullman section which they hire, they divide the swag. Cotton, beastly drunk, attempts to attack a pretty girl who is riding alone in the neighboring compartment. A terrible struggle ensues in which Jimmy flies to the aid of the girl and hurls Cotton through the window.

Cotton, before he dies, tells of the robbery and accuses Valentine, who is run down and caught in New York, by Doyle, the relentless man-hound of the detective force.

Jimmy is convicted and sentenced to ten years in Sing Sing. Before he is caught he succeeds in breaking another safe at Springfield, Mass., and it is to fasten this job on him, also, that Doyle sets to work.

Doyle visits Sing Sing to try and force Bill Avery, who is a close pal of Red Joclyn and Jimmy, to turn against the noted cracksman, but Bill refuses and is threatened by Doyle. Avery leaves the prison, after finishing his term of eight years and ten months.

The following day Sing Sing prison is visited by the women of the Gate of Hope Society, who have with them a distinguished humanitarian—none other than Lieutenant-Governor Fay, who brings along his pretty niece, Rose Lane, the daughter of an Illinois banker. She is visiting the East and asks to be shown through Sing Sing.

Handler, the warden, feels honored by the visit of Fay and decides to show him how hopeless it is to try to save criminals, such as are under lock and key in the noted prison.

An inventor, who has perfected a wonderful lock appears as Handler calls for "Dick, the Rat," who opens it with a bent hair pin.

The warden then decides to show what "a high-class crook" can do, and tells his visitors he has a man who can open the safe in his office, merely by the sensitive touch of his fingers. He produces Jimmy Valentine, who is amazed to discover, in Rose Lane, the beautiful girl he saved on the train. She, too, recognizes him, and tells her uncle, the Lieutenant-Governor, that the man in the convict suit is her savior. In the presence of all, Rose steps up and thanks Jimmy for saving her life.

The warden is amazed. Then he calls on Jimmy to show all his skill by opening the safe. Jimmy contends that he does not know how—that he is not a safe-cracker, and that he has been wrongly convicted on the words of a dying, discredited criminal—Mike Cotton.

Handler is enraged, but the Lieutenant-Governor tells him be still and asks Jimmy to tell his story.

THE light of life and the flush of blood, long dried with imprisonment, came back to Jimmy at the word.

"Pardon?" he asked, half incredulous.

"I'll talk, sir."

"You will, eh?" Handler fairly shouted. "You know what I'll do——"

"I'll take all the other chances for this one," Jimmy replied.

"I am the Lieutenant-Governor of this State, and"——began Fay.

"Yes, sir; I'll talk," Jimmy said, eagerly.

"Are you sure this is the man, Rose?" Fay asked his niece.

Rose nodded.

"Mr. Valentine, have you ever seen me before?" asked Rose.

"Yes."

"Can you tell me where?"

"I would like to," said Jimmy, again casting his eyes towards Handler.

"Warden, I would like this man to be left with me and my niece for a few moments, if the ladies will excuse us," the Lieutenant-Governor said to Handler.

Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Webster, delighted at the discomfiture of the warden, followed him from the room.

Rose, her hero, and the Lieutenant-Governor remained behind.

Jimmy turned and looked at her and loved her.

Out of prison, he told himself, he would work his fingers to the bone, in honest toil, for her.

Rose went to him and extended her hand. He took it and pressed it.

CHAPTER XV.

THE Lieutenant-Governor was anxious that Rose should be certain in her identification of the man who had saved her from the ruffian on her journey East. Rose quickly set his anxiety at rest.

"Mr. Valentine," she began, "tell my uncle where you saw me before to-day, please."

"On the New York Central train, after leaving Buffalo," Jimmy replied. "You were alone in the compartment. I saw a man approach the door and talk to you. You were pale and frightened. I pulled him away."

"Yes; go on," urged Rose.

"He came back again," resumed Jimmy. "I heard a struggle. I saw the man attack you. He was drunk and vicious. We fought, and I hip-locked him and threw him from the window."

"I had no chance to thank you," said Rose. "I do so, most sincerely now."

"After you threw the man out of the window will you tell me what you did next, Mr. Valentine?" asked Fay.

"I was afraid I might have killed him," replied Jimmy, "and so, when the train slowed up again, I jumped off."

The Killing of Cotton.

"He was badly hurt; died later, did he not?" asked Fay.

"Yes, sir."

"Was he a friend of yours?"

"No sir."

"But he confessed that he was your partner in robbing the bank, did he not?"

"Yes, sir."

"Why, do you suppose?"

"Probably because I threw him from the train and he wanted to score even with me."

"How did you come by the money, identified as having been stolen from the bank?"

The Lieutenant-Governor had suddenly recalled reading a part of the testimony of the trial of Jimmy, and that he had been struck by this piece of evidence as being most damaging.

Jimmy was not disconcerted by the question.

"I won it from him playing cards on the train just before the trouble started," he said.

"Is Valentine your name?"

"No, sir."

"Then how did he know you as Valentine."

"He asked me my name while we were playing cards, and, as I thought it was none of his business, I gave him the name of Valentine."

"What is your business?"

"Expert accountant, and I have been an expert mechanician."

"Did you give this evidence at the trial?"

"No, sir."

Rose spoke not a word during the cross-examination, for she knew that if Valentine impressed her uncle favorably, he would use his influence to get the Governor to grant a pardon. Jimmy also realized that by the clear-cut answers, and by his own demeanor under fire, his fate would be decided.

"Why didn't you offer this evidence you have given me?" asked the Lieutenant-Governor.

"The man on whose confession I was arrested," explained Jimmy, "had died. If I had told this story, they would have tried me for murder. To defend a murder charge I would have had to bring in your niece."

"You did not know the young lady; you could not have been governed by any thought of her, surely."

"It meant," Jimmy replied to this, correcting his error and getting on his guard again; "I meant that I was afraid her testimony would have convicted me of the murder. I did not believe they could convict on the charge of burglary."

"It seems to me that you would have asked for a new trial," suggested Fay.

"My lawyer is working for that now," replied Jimmy.

The cross-examination was at an end. Jimmy's jury consisted of two people—the Lieutenant-Governor of the State and the lovely girl, who seemed wrapt up in his fate. From the way Rose's eyes glistened, and from the way she whispered her pleadings to her uncle, Jimmy knew that half of the jury was for him.

He stood silent, and seemingly composed, as uncle and niece whispered, but his heart was trembling. He was near to a rescue from what was, to him, a living death. Life with hope and happiness—a new life, clean and with a straight path—seemed about to unfold in a refreshing and beautiful vista to his eyes.

The seconds seemed hours. Finally Fay spoke.

"Tell your lawyer to apply for a pardon," he said. "I promise you he shall have every assistance in his effort to secure it."

Jimmy felt as if he could have wept with joy. His lips trembled.

"Thank you; thank you," he said simply.

"You may thank my niece," said the Lieutenant Governor.

"I thank her most deeply."

"That is all," said Fay.

Jimmy started for the door and then stopped.

"Words are futile things sometimes, sir," he began.

"I know; I understand," Fay declared, sympathetically.

"Good-by, Mr. Valentine," exclaimed Rose.

"I would rather you call me by a name that has not been disgraced," suggested Jimmy. "My name is Lee Randall."

"Good-by, Lee Randall," corrected Rose smilingly, and extending her hand.

Jimmy clasped it fervently, and, with a heartfelt "God bless you," left the room. room.

"Is he innocent?" asked Fay as Jimmy departed.

"Why, certainly," exclaimed Rose.

"That is your intuition," her uncle declared with a laugh.

"It is all that a girl has to judge by; don't you think he is innocent?" she asked.

"I don't know," her uncle replied, "but I believe that he would be honest if he were given a chance."

"And you are going to give it to him?"

"We will go to the Governor," he replied.

Rose threw her arms about his neck and thanked him, with a hug and a kiss.

For That Is Woman's Way

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

TIM SOOTER stoked the boilers of the ferryboat Eclaire:
Madge Mushroom was the daughter of a Pittsburg millionaire.
Tim met her on the avenue and passed the time of day;
Madge merely sniffed and tossed her head, for such is woman's way.
Tim's face went red with baffled rage, embarrassment and hate;
He clenched his fists and ground his teeth and muttered hoarsely, "Wait."

They met a fortnight later on the ferryboat Eclaire,
Exchanging as they sauntered by a bitter mutual stare.
And then the ferryboat blew up, and started to go down,
And Madge bethought her swiftly of her new imported gown.
"My frock is made of peau de soie, which spots when it gets wet;
Oh, save me, sir," she said to Tim, and Tim replied: "You bet."

He seized an axe and deftly chopped the pilot house away;
Inverted it, inserted Madge, and launched her on the bay.
He stripped his life preserver off, bent on a mooring line,
And anchored her securely in the bubbling, seething brine.
And when a tugboat rescued her and hauled her on the deck.
Her lovely gown of peau de soie had neither spot nor speck.

And what of Tim? He drifted down, and down, and down, until
An oyster schooner rescued him sou-east of Tompkinsville.
They set him dripping on the beach; he purchased things to eat,
And in his heart there sang a song that said that life was sweet.
But when next week he met Miss Madge and passed the time of day,
She merely sniffed and tossed her head, for such is woman's way.

Mummies Used as Medicine.

INCREDIBLE as it now may seem to even the ordinary lay mind about half a century ago reputable physicians believed that mummies had curative powers. An editorial writer in an issue of the London Hospital tells of their use as folowls:

"The mummies made use of were of two kinds, genuine and artificial. The former were snatched by the Arabs from the burial places of the valley of the Nile and sent into Europe and Asia. The therapeutic virtues of these were attributed to the asphalt with which the embalmer had impregnated the bodies, and of which Galen and the other Greek physicians acknowledged the healing virtues in cases of colds, eczema, convulsions, epilepsy, suppuration and other maladies.

"The author also asserts that the very name—mummy—is derived from a Persian and Arabic word meaning asphalt, and that it was only at a later date that the word was used exclusively to refer to embalmed bodies.

"Mummies were so generally used in Persia as remedies that the Shah offered them as presents to friendly sovereigns. Louis XIV. and Catherine received gold boxes filled with mummified limbs, and as late as 1809 Queen Caroline of England was ordered mummy extract by her physicians.

"In the absence of authentic mummies, such as the soil of Egypt alone could furnish, an artificial variety was manufactured in other countries. . . . The mummy extract, says the German savant, was in common use in the eighteenth century, and as late as 1853 it figured in Austrian pharmacy."

THE BLIZZARD

THE blizzard howls across the plains
And covers forests in its wrath.
It breaks the schedules of the trains
That happen to be in its path.
How sweet to bear its vibrant yell
On such an afternoon as this.
When it is simply hot as fire
And all the asphalt pavements hiss.

NO CHANCE THERE

LOS ANGELES, as all the world knows, is one of the most healthful places on earth. Apropos of the healthfulness of Los Angeles, Luther Burbank, the plant wizard, recently said:

"The town has, for its population, an unprecedented number of octogenarians, nonogenarians, even centenarians. The other day a hale but very aged couple boarded a train out of Los Angeles.

"'Well, no; not exactly,' said the old man. 'My wife and I, you see, have had about our share of life. I'm one hundred and eleven years old and my wife here is one hundred and six, and we're going down to Seattle to die. You can't die in Los Angeles.'"

Wilfred's Dope

As the Manicure Lady Sees It.

"BROTHER WILFRED has got a dandy new scheme for being a author," said the Manicure Lady. "He was telling me and the old gent all about it last night, when we was having our hog and hominy in the little flat we love so well. He is going to get a blank book, and every time he gets a new thought he is going to write it down in the book, and after he has enough material he is going to make it all into a novel or a play."

"That ain't a new idea," declared the Head Barber. "I got a cousin that wrote a couple of plays and three books, and he always carries a blank book around with him to write down his ideas in. Of course, a good many of the ideas is about as blank as the book, but he seems to think it is a good scheme, and as long as he thinks so I suppose I got no right to butt in and tell him different."

He Kidded Wilfred

"Well, there's no use telling Brother Wilfred what you said," said the Manicure Lady. "The poor boy has had disappointments enough in his life, goodness knows, George, without shattering all his dreams.

"The old gent was awful mean about it at the time Wilfred was unfolding the scheme. He said he would buy the blank book for Wilfred himself, being that it wouldn't take very much paper to write down all the bright thoughts Wilfred would get in a year or so. In fact, the old gent said a book the size of a theatre programme would do, and there would be plenty of room left for ads.

"I think the old gent is a little raw on brother, but maybe Wilfred will show him something some of these days. He was telling me some of the bright thoughts that he got last night. He asked me to help him remember them till he could scrape up the price to buy the book to write them down in. Here is some of them, George.

"'Self praise doesn't go a long ways. Self pity never even starts.

"'The things that we love in our enemies we deplore in our daschshunds.'

"'Wives should not blame ambitious husbands for taking an occasional drink. An automobile cannot climb a hill without gasolene.'

The Barber's Almanac

"'Maud Muller was mistaken in thinking the Judge was rich. The fact that he gazed admiringly at her proved that he was a poor judge.'

"There was a lot of other clever things in his mind, George, and I think he done right when he made up his mind that he was going to preserve them for the use and delight of future generations yet unborn."

"I guess the future generations would try to struggle along without them," said the cynical Head Barber. "When I was a kid all that I had in the way of good reading was the almanac, yet I suppose some boob that lived a hundred years ago and wrote a few poems or novels thought he was writing them for me to read."

"You talk and write like you was brought up on the almanac," said the Manicure Lady. "You don't need to be standing there telling me what you read when you was young and innocent. In fact, George, if you hadn't told me I wouldn't have known that you even read clear through a whole almanac. I would have figured that your only literature was the lesson for next Sunday, or the label on a lemon extract bottle."

A Discontented Wife

By WINIFRED BLACK

DEAR WINIFRED BLACK—I am, I trust, sensible enough to reason things out fairly well, but am still prone to look darkly on my lot. All my friends are out of town, two abroad. And just this morning a glowing letter of their travels made me, not envious, but it made the walls of this little apartment hateful. My husband is only a small salaried man, so we must remain in town—the first Summer I ever spent in New York. Just scold me in your adorable way. I know it will help so much. I fear I am getting the love of money from living in this big city; but I so long for the open in this Summer season.

A WIFE.

DEAR me, who wouldn't hate New York in the Summer?

I don't care much for the sort of woman who likes to be shut up in a flat in July and August, do you?

If you could only have the vacation now, and that brand new husband of yours, too, wouldn't it be glorious?

But they don't come together for you—not this season.

"Well, then, don't waste your breath sighing over the vacation. Look at your husband, and remember how many of the girls who are at the seashore this very minute would give brand new bathing suits, caps, sandals and all for just one look of real love from such a pair of eyes as his.

I know a girl who is going to marry for money—that is, she says she is. She is always telling about the yacht she is going to have and the foreign travels and the sights she is going to see. Oh, she will be in clover when she marries that money.

Frocks, jewels, boxes at the opera, automobiles, saddle horses—there is nothing in the world she won't have, except a husband.

There never seems to be any room for him in any of the yachts or the town or country houses.

Dear girl, she's only dreaming. She'll wake up some day and marry the man she loves, and laugh every time she thinks of her nonsense about the millionaire.

You can't have everything at once, sister. If you have a good husband and a happy home, run right into the darkest corner of that flat this minute and fall on your knees and thank the Great Giver of all good for making you so happy.

Her Solitaire

By N. P. BABCOCK.

A BURGLAR through the doorway crept
(To burgle, I surmise),
Believing that the household slept,
And met a large surprise.

A lady, in her dressing gown,
Sat practicing the knack
Of laying certain red cards down
On other cards of black.

She did not deign to look at him,
But said, with plaintive pout,
"I've tried it since eleven, Jim,
And still it won't come out.

"I trust you've had a pleasant night—
Just look at that black queen,
The king is hidden out of sight—
I wonder where you've been.

"The landlord called again to-day—
Oh, there's the ace at last—
He says we've really got to pay
Or move—the jack's stuck fast.

"I wish when you intend to go
From home for two whole days
You'd leave a little money—Oh!
That red nine gives three plays."

The burglar tiptoed to the door
And out into the air;
He'd not the heart to burgle for
Her only solitaire.

To-day's Best Story

HARD ON HALL

APROPOS of Hall Caine's recent lawsuit, a playwright said:

"Hall Caine is always talking about his health, his ruined nerves, insomnia, and so forth. He is as proud of his invalidism as Sandow is of his muscles.

"The last time I saw Hall Caine was in his bedroom in the Hotel Walton, in Philadelphia. The little thin man, with his domelike forehead and weak, wispy whiskers, looked more like Shakespeare than ever.

"'Mr. Hall Caine,' I said, 'I hope you're well.'

"'Well?' he snarled. 'I'm far from well. I haven't slept, sir, for two weeks.'

"'Then,' said I, 'you're ever so much better, for the last time I saw you you hadn't slept for a month.'"

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR CURED

A Lady Will Send Free to any Sufferer the Secret which Cured Her.

Since a child I was distressed and humiliated by an unwelcome growth of hair on my face and arms. I tried all the depilatories, powders, liquids, creams and other rub-on preparations I ever heard of, only to make it worse. For weeks I suffered the electric needle without being rid of my blemish. I spent a great deal of money on various things in vain, until a friend recommended a simple preparation which succeeded where all else failed.

This simple remedy, a harmless, soluble liquid, enabled me permanently to find entire relief from all trace of unwelcome hair, and forever end my embarrassment. It is simple, safe, sure, and can be used privately at home, without fear of pain or blemish. It makes the electric needle entirely unnecessary.

I will tell in detail full particulars to enable any other sufferer to achieve the same happy results as I did privately at home. All I ask is a two cent stamp for reply. Address CAROLINE OSGOOD, 118 F, Old P. O. St., Providence, R. I.

THOUSANDS AWAITING RAILROAD BOARD VOTE ON BOSTON & EASTERN

Thousands of North Shore residents and others who will be served by the proposed Boston & Eastern Electric Railroad from Beverly to Boston are anxiously waiting to-day for decision from the Railroad Commission on re-opening hearings on the road.

After a hearing before the commission, at which Ex-Mayor Charles S. Baxter of Medford, as counsel for the road, made vigorous plea for a re-opening of the case, the committee reserved decision.

If favorable action is taken by the commission, then the road will prepare an appeal for a certificate of exigency, so-called, to issue, allowing construction of the line.

That the Boston Chamber of Commerce favors the road is shown by a statement issued by Henry Howard, chairman of the public utilities committee of the chamber. This statement calls for the road, without a new East Boston tunnel if possible, but with a new tunnel if necessary for its best construction.

Howard's Statement.

Chairman Howard's statement, which was given in written form to the commission at the hearing, reads:

"The hearing to-day is, I understand, limited to the consideration of the question as to whether or not the hearings on the application of the Boston & Eastern Electric Railroad for a certificate of exigency shall be reopened.

"My understanding of this matter is that a certificate of exigency has not been denied but that the decision of the question has been postponed until the General Court of 1911 has reached a decision in regard to the other metropolitan improvements now under consideration.

"The Boston Chamber of Commerce, through its committee on public utilities, sustained by the directors and executive committee, has already stated the position of the Chamber in this mater, namely, that the Chamber is heartily in favor of the transportation improvements which are proposed by the Boston & Eastern Electric Railroad, but is opposed to the building of a new tunnel unless it can be shown that the present East Boston tunnel is inadequate to serve as a substitute.

Chamber's Position.

"We believe that the question of the availability of the present tunnel is a vital one from the standpoint of the general public, and if your honorable board is willing to take up the consideration of this question, we wish to go on record as being strongly in favor of re-opening the hearings. It is obvious that if you should find upon investigation that the East Boston tunnel with comparatively inexpensive alterations could be made available for use by suitable cars of the Boston & Eastern Electric Railroad that the question of serious interference with other metropolitan improvements, particularly with the North and South Station tunnel, would disappear.

"In closing, I wish to say that if after careful investigation it seems impracticable to use the present tunnel, the Chamber would be heartily in favor of building a new tunnel, and its present attitude is not that of obstructing the building of the Boston & Eastern Electric Railroad, but of actually hurrying matters up. This is true because tunnel construction would be much slower than the building of the balance of the road, so that the Boston & Eastern actually ought to be able to begin operating at an earlier date through the present tunnel than if a new one must first be built."

It seems impossible to the people who were at this last hearing and have followed the singular course of delay, embarrassment and persecution which have been visited upon the road, that Commissioners George W. Bishop and Clinton White, the majority members of the board in this case, can vote to refuse the necessary certificate to the company.

Chairman Believed Favorable.

The vote of Commisioner Walter Perley Hall (chairman), who dissented on August 20 from the majority to delay issue of the certificate of exigency, is counted on as favorable still to the speedy construction of this much-needed line.

It is worthy of note that this dissenting opinion of Chairman Hall on August 20 was the first dissenting opinion in the history of the commission. The text of the majority vote delaying the certificate was read throughout the State with utter surprise. This written report of Commissioners White and Bishop read in part:

"The majority of the board is now of the opinion that in the exercise of its discretion further consideration of the application of the Boston & Eastern Electric Railroad Company for a certificate of exigency, so-called, should be suspended until the General Court of 1911 shall have made known its opinions with respect to many important proposals relative to metropolitan improvements."

That the very chairman of the board, Commissioner Hall, was not in any such peculiar state of mind is shown by the written report of his dissenting vote, thus:

"I regret my inability to agree with the conclusions set forth by my colleagues in the foregoing memorandum. I am of the opinion that the passage of Acts of 1910, Chapter 630, authorizing the Boston & Eastern Electric Railroad Company to construct a tunnel and terminal in the city of Boston, taken in connection with the whole subject of metropolitan improvements, and the action of the General Court of the same year relating thereto, creates a situation that will be in no wise prejudiced by an adjudication at the present time of the position of the Boston & Eastern Electric Railroad Company for a certificate of exigency, so-called."

Opposed by Steam Roads.

A plain, unvarnished story of what the Boston & Eastern trolley road is planned to be, what it means to the North Shore-Boston transit public and how it is to be run, is told in the statement made by John H. Bickford, chief engineer of the road, thus:

"Though we have been trying hard for more than four years to surmount the various obstacles that have been placed in our path, our courage is still as good as if it was the day we began. We are still at work. We have been and are still opposed in our efforts to make this new line a reality by the Boston & Maine, the New York, New Haven & Hartford, the Boston Elevated, the Boston & Northern, the Boston Albany, the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn Railroad and the large financial institutions of Boston affiliated with these roads.

"The railroads opposed to us have tried to show that I am alone in the promotion of the Boston & Eastern. That is untrue. While three of the men originally interested are now dead, there are others who are still interested and have interested other men. We have already publicly stated that the McArthur Brothers' Company of New York is vitally interested in the project. It is through them and their financial interests that this project is backed. This company would have built the Panama Canal in all probability if the Government had decided to let the contract to a private concern.

"The proposed line is of the so-called interurban type. This has been extensively constructed in the West, especially in Indiana, Illinois and Ohio. But in its detail the proposed line differs very materially from other interurban lines.

A High-Class Road.

"This road will be more after the order of the New York, Westchester & Boston Railway, now building out of New York city through Westchester county. It will be a high-class, high-speed electric railroad. It is intended to be operated on a private right of way, with no crossings at grade with either streets or other railroads or railways.

"The line will extend to Postoffice square, Boston to Beverly. The main line will be double tracked. It will pass through Lynn, Salem and Peabody, that being the most direct route between the two terminals. The line will be about two and one-third miles shorter than the Boston & Maine route.

"A branch will run of from a point on the boundry line between Salem and Peabody, through Peabody square to Danvers. This will be single tracked with two 1,000 foot turnouts.

"In Lynn the road will go through High Rock in a tunnel, for distance of half a mile. There will be two other short tunnels between Lynn and Beverly. The proposed average speed for express trains is forty-five miles per hour; for ordinary trains, thirty miles an hour.

"From Postoffice square the running time oft he express trains is: To Revere Town Hall, eight minutes; Lynn City Hall, fourteen minutes; Peabody square, twenty-two minutes; Danvers square, twenty-eight minutes; Salem Court House, nineteen minutes; Beverly Centre, twenty-three minutes.

"The cars will be of steel construction and having the multiple system of unit control. The cars will be longer and wider than those in use on the Elevated in Boston. They will have a number of crosswise seats for the comfort of those passengers who are bound through to the end of the line at Beverly and Danvers.

"There are three zones into which the territory to be served may be divided: One for Salem, Beverly, Peabody and Danvers; one made up of Lynn, Swampscott and Saugus, and a third made up of Revere, a part of Chelsea and Boston. The express service will be such as to give each one direct connection with Boston, with practically no stop in the other zones. A secondary service will supply the necessary accommodation between the zones.

"Single cash fares will be on an average of 1½ cents per mile. There will be commutation tickets of small denominations at a rate within the reach of all."

Stops Itching at Once.

Quite recently a chemist formulated a compound which possesses such soothing and curative properties that, when applied, it stops the itching of eczema and similar diseases immediately. Sufferers who use it are amazed at the rapidity of the relief which follows its use. The skin heals in an astonishingly short time, and all traces of the disease are eradicated. The name of this new remedy is Cadum, and it is sold by all druggists for 10c. and 25c. a box. It is also remarkably effective when used for acne, herpes, pimples, blackheads, psoriasis, itching piles, tetter, salt rheum and skin diseases generally. A 10c. box will verify these statements.

Tiger Chokes to Death.

NEW YORK—Rajah, handsomest of tigers in the Bronx Zoo and favorite of the keepers, died suddenly yesterday in his cage. It was feeding time, and the tiger was hungry. When the keepers threw the first piece of meat to him the tiger caught it savagely and tore off a big piece. An instant later he choked, was seized with convulsions and died almost instantly.

JUDGE IN PERIL AT STRIKE RIOT

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—In peril of his life as rioters fought near the sugar trust's Williamsburg plant, where there has been a strike for several weeks, Magistrate Higginbotham was to-day forced to barricade himself in a doorway to which he fled. While presiding in the Bedford Avenue Police Court the magistrate had imposed heavy sentences on strikers.

Two men were shot in to-day's battle, which occurred a block from the refinery. Mr. Higginbotham was passing on his way to court when he saw a group of men quarrelling. He started toward them, but a dozen bullets flew over his head. The fight grew fiercer, the crowd advancing on the magistrate who took refuge in the nearest doorway. When the battle was over, he emerged and picked up one of the wounded, John Brannigan, whom he carried to the Eastern District Hospital.

KELIHER IS AGAIN ASSAILED BY MURRAY

Councillor William F. Murray, candidate for Congress in the Ninth District, again charged John A. Keliher with having voted for "Cannonism" in the last Congress, at an open-air rally at the corner of Bunker Hill and Medford streets, Charlestown, last night. About four hundred persons heard Mr. Murray speak, and many signed his nomination papers, which will be filed to-day. Mr. Murray will speak to-night in Ward 6, corner of Prince and Hanover streets, and in North Square.

FINIGAN FILES PAPERS IN 11TH

"I am in this fight to the finish. I have not been promised the support of a single leader, but I am satisfied that I can win without them."

Ex-Alderman Frederick A. Finigan, the latest aspirant for the Democratic nomination in the Eleventh District, made this announcement to-day after he left the rooms of the Democratic City Committee, where he filed nomination papers with 160 signatures that will insure his name going upon the ballot at the State primary.

"Of course I am starting in this fight somewhat handicapped because I am late in announcing my candidacy," he said. "I have been a persistent supporter of ex-Senator Thomas H. Dowd for the Democratic nomination, and until his withdrawal I did not expect to enter the fight.

"Now that I have entered the field I find that most of the leaders are already pledged to my opponents. That does not discourage me. I will fight regardless of leaders."

POND DRAGGED FOR AMESBURY GIRL

AMESBURY, Aug. 31.—The police to-day are dragging Bailey's Pond for the body of Catherine Riley, twenty-two, who was employed by Mrs. Ralph W. Gould. She disappeared three days ago. It is not known that she was drowned, but it was decided to drag the pond in the hope of clearing the mystery. When asked what he knew about the case Chief Ryan said: "I can't talk." NEW BEDFORD STRIKERS GET A $2,000 FUND

NEW BEDFORD, Aug. 31.—Officials of the striking building workers are indignant over the reports in morning papers that the strike has been broken, and to-day International President Dominic d'Alessandro of the Hod Carriers' Union, who is superintending the strike, received $2,000 from the national union, which was distributed in sums of $1 to each man daily. More will come lated. This it is expected will strengthen the ranks of the strikers. President d'Alessandro said to-day:

"If the contractors think they can beat us by reporting that the strike is broken, they will be mistaken. Do you think I would pay out money as I am going to do, unless I confidently expected that we were going to win, and knew that I had the situation well in hand? I delayed getting this benefit fund until the last moment, in the hope of effecting a settlement. There is, however, no chance of a compromise, and we are now out to win."

At the headquarters of the strikers at Labor Temple, arrangements have been made to feed the men. They are all quiet and confident. The importation by the Converse people of forty non-union bricklayers to-day, it is expected, will lead to further complications.

GOES TO WATERTOWN ON THEFT CHARGE

Clifford Durant, aged twenty-two, is held in New Haven on a charge of horse stealing. Chief Cooney of Watertown, where Durant is wanted on the charge of theft of a horse and carriage from Potter's stable, said the young man would be brought to Watertown. His course ran to Holyoke, Bilford, Vt., Springfield, Hartfordville, Ct., and New Haven, in which town it is alleged he either sold the teams or got loans on them. Finally, it is said, he hired a gig in New Haven and drove to Rye, N. Y., where the police who had been on his trail, arrested him, before he could dispose of his conveyance, and took him to New Haven.

HOTEL MEN SEEK CHANGE IN AUTO LAW

By J. C. KERRISON.

The hotel men of New York, New Jersey and the New England States are about to take some concrete action looking towards the elimination of the reciprocity clauses in the automobile laws of these States.

They feel that these reciprocity privileges are a great injury to their business, and at a recent meeting of the New England Hotel Men's Association in Springfield, action looking towards the elimination of this feature was taken.

The hotel men complained because the requirements curtail greatly the amount of business from automobile parties, and believe that some action should be taken by the Hotel Men's Association of the different States, whereby these conditions could be relieved.

* * *

A representative of the New England Association is to meet and discuss the matter with the New York Hotel Men's Association at their meeting in New York on Thursday, when it is believed that the several Governors of the States mentioned will be petitioned to hold up prosecution on the retaliatory enactment until such time as the national legislation can become operative in all States, making the regulation of licensing automobiles uniform.

In other words, this means that the Hotel Men's Association is strongly in favor of the enactment of a Federal registration law, such as has been proposed within the last few years by the American Automobile Association, and this coming year the association will have the support of these men in its fight before Congress.

To suspend the retaliatory clauses of the several States until the enactment of the federation bill would be something no Governor would care to do, because there is no reason to believe that any such bill will be enacted during the sitting of the next Congress.

Vice-President Horace DeLisser of the United States Motor Company makes the announcement that that organization will hereafter be represented in all big racing and endurance events and that Hugh N. Harding, one of the best known and nerviest American drivers, has been secured to pilot Maxwell, Columbia and Stoddard-Dayton cars.

It is the intention of the big $30,000,000 selling organization to have some of its various divisions represented in all prominent track and road events and that a racing team will be maintained, which will be in charge of Contest Manager M. C. Reeves.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

DULLNESS IN STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—The stock market was again dull at the opening in Wall street to-day, prices showing little changes. While leading issues showed fractional declines at the opening, they recovered in a few minutes with very little trading.

United States Steel was among those that showed a decline at the opening. From a ¾ loss, however, it speedily regained, and the preferred stock showed a slight advance. The cotton market opened easier to-day with considerable pressure in the near months.

The curb market opened fairly active and steady.

American shares in London were extremely dull and the few issues in which there was any trading at all showed fractional declines.

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

A reasonable explanation seems to have been found for the mysterious short interest in stocks. Steel was lending without interest for a short time this week and brokers were able to lend it yesterday at half the price of call money. Amalgamated was the same way. There is no such large short interest as this lending rate would seem to indicate.

$ $ $

Many brokers are loaded up with time money against which they have deposited as collateral stocks held for their customers. The customers have sold the stocks and the brokers are compelled to borrow other stocks for delivery or for substitution in their loan envelopes. Several important houses have refused to renew their time loans on this account. The fact that Aldrich money could be issued on the appearance of any abnormal rate has made the brokers feel safe.

Opening of the Pennsylvania tunnel has failed to cause any enthusiasm, perhaps because of a peculiar rumor that was afloat. Somebody discovered that several very large pumps have recently been taken down into the tunnel under the East River. It is assumed that these pumps are for use in getting rid of leakage. Investigation fails to discover any more leakage in that tunnel, however, than would naturally be expected during the settlement of new work. The leakage, if any, is not worthy stock market notice. It will be well to bear this in mind lest raiders attempt to break the market with some wild story based on the use of additional pumps.

In Consolidated Gas there is some interesting talk that fails to be reflected on the exchange. As announced a year ago, there is a project for the consolidation of Consolidated Gas and Brooklyn Union Gas. These gas stocks are among the few issues that conservative bankers are advising their clients to buy without reserve, for it is only a question of time when the directors will be compelled to give shareholders a square deal in the way of dividends.

$ $ $

Preliminary reports of the St. Paul statement for the last fiscal year show that after providing for all dividends there will be a surplus of more than a million dollars. The coast extension will be credited with net revenue of $5,300,000 for the eleven months it was in operation.

$ $ $

The Denver & Rio Grande management has been caught doing some bookkeeping that will not stand investigation. In the annual report issued a few days ago the company claimed an increase in revenue from investments of more than a million dollars. This great increase was a glad surprise for Wall Street, until the discovery was made that it was accomplished by crediting to the profit and loss account the accrued interest on second mortgage bonds of the Western Pacific. This interest will be paid when earned, but it will be several years before it can be earned, and this bookkeeping profit will be converted into cash only when great expectations come true.

$ $ $

The Gould properties have not been in the habit of surprising the public with good news, but the geographical location of the Western Pacific is such as to promise payment of this accrued interest some day. The real money earned by Denver & Rio Grande leaves a surplus of only about $400,000 after paying the preferred dividend, and there is no promise of a common stock dividend in that. Denver & Rio Grande is going to have a long pull and a hard pull unless the Burlington or the Rock Island systems join hands with it.

$ $ $

President Ripley, of the Atchison, said on the witness stand that the system earned only 8.18 per cent. on its common stock the last fiscal year, with the biggest gross earnings on record. He predicted smaller earnings this year, and said he would not be surprised if earnings on the common stock were no more than 6 per cent.

REPORT WHALER LOST ON ROCKS

NORTH SIDNEY, N. S., Aug. 31.—The mail steamer Bruce, here from Port au Basque, N. F., reports that the whaling steamer Cachelot, Capt. Amundsen, struck a reef on the east end of Belle Isle and is fast, badly damaged and full of water. All the crew reached the land in safety. The vessel was engaged in fishing off Hawkes Harbor, Labrador, and has thirty-two whales aboard. The steamer is owned by a Newfoundland company, and she is insured only against total loss.

It is thought improbable that the steamer can be floated.

NEWTON MAN REPORTED LOST

BRETTON WOODS, N. H., Aug. 31.—Search is being made of mountains for Edmund C. Brickett of West Newton, Mass., who started from Montreal for Boston the first of last week on a bicycle.

Since then no word has been received from him, and through the efforts of the chief of police of Newton all the mountain hotels are being notified in the hope that if by any chance he has been taken sick on his journey.

Brickett is described as 6 feet 2 inches in height, age twenty-seven, weight 165 pounds.

NAVY DISCARDS SIREN.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—The converted yacht Siren, purchased during the Spanish-American war for $40,000, is to be discarded by the navy.

DYNAMITE CARS AT COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 31.—Dynamiters of cars involved in the strike here wrecked three cars with passengers in which four persons were injured. The dynamiting was the worst of the strike.

A Main street car ran over explosives at Grand avenue. Two men, C. K. Fraback, a druggist, and Harry Hirskowitz, a tailor, were pulled out from beneath the car when it stopped. Fraback's right ankle bones were shattered, and the foot may have to be amputated. Hirskowitz got off with a scalp wound.

A Long street car was dynamited at Monroe avenue and the rear part blown out. The conductor was hurled to the street unconscious. His injuries were not serious. J. Adams Zwerner, a passenger, was hit on the head by a piece of metal from a shattered car wheel.

BOY SWALLOWS CENT AND DIES

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—William Carmen, aged five, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Carmen of South Side and Bay View avenues, Freeport, L. I., is dead at the South Shore Hospital, Hempstead, L. I., as the result of swallowing a cent, with which he had been playing.

Three weeks ago he was playing with a coin, when it slipped down his throat. On Sunday he complained of feeling ill. He gradually grew worse until Dr. Carman ordered his removal to the hospital for an operation.

An X-ray examination showed the coin had formed an abscess, destroying the wall of the stomach, and an operation was impossible as the boy was too weak.

A Hen Cackles When She Has Laid an Egg

Because SHE Knows That She HAS Laid an Egg. It is Possible to Misjudge the Braggart, and Underestimate Him

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

Every little while we remind you that what is usually called "bragging" is often real power out of work, and sometimes not bragging at all, but the statement of a FACT.

Fathers and mothers must not be too hard on the little boy or girl inclined to "talk big" and brag.

Teach your children to be modest, since that is the custom, but do it without making them hypocrites. Remember that when the little boy tells what wonderful things he HAS done or is going to do, the childish bragging shows at least that the little boy WANTS TO DO SOMETHING.

A father and mother will probably be prouder, in future, of the little boy that bragged innocently, than of the dull little mouse that had not even the energy and imagination to think of something to brag about.

(Of course, the "dull little mouse" may be a hard thinker, too deep in thought to talk at all. But that is still ANOTHER kind of a little boy.)

A hen is mentioned at the top of this column. You know that the hen's way of bragging is to cackle. If you did not understand hens and suddenly entered a barn yard, you might seriously misunderstand ONE certain hen.

You would see her walking up and down, head high, eyes bright, wings loose, cackling with all her might—disturbing the whole barnyard. And you might say: "That's a silly hen, making such a noise, disturbing others with her foolish, self-praising cackle."

The farmer would say: "Let that hen alone. SHE KNOWS that she has laid an egg. Let her cackle if she wants to."

No man is more often misunderstood than the bragging man. Nothing is more normal and healthy than a reasonable amount of bragging and cackling. English people, if at all well bred, never brag. Americans, as a nation, brag more or less ALL the time.

Do not we bragging Americans beat the English at anything they can name, from Marathoning to railroading and trust building? We do, indeed.

And what was England when she was really great? She was then the bragging nation of Queen Elizabeth, and Raleigh, and Shakespeare, and all the rest of them. Nobody ever bragged more earnestly, innocently and persistently than Shakespeare, whether he bragged that to be mentioned in his sonnet would make the mentioned one immortal (as it DID), or whether he bragged most eloquently and beautifully about "this realm, this England."

As big a braggart as ever lived was Wolfe. We've told you before how he walked up and down before his official chief in England waving his sword and bragging of what he would do in Canada. His chief, disgusted, tells us that he was tempted to take away Wolfe's command.

But when Wolfe got to Canada, he captured Quebec and gladly gave up his life doing it. There his BRAGGING was changed into FIGHTING.

If your child, or your young employe, is inclined to brag, be gentle and lenient with him. Listen patiently, rebuke kindly, if at all. Remember that what you take for modesty in yourself may be only old age, weakened vitality, or the subduing memory of many failures. Youth brags, age rests.

A hen cackles AFTER she has laid an egg.

The human being cackles, brags BEFORE the egg is laid, before the deed is done.

Don't condemn the human cackler, for you may feel very small later when the cackling is followed by the laying of some big achievement.

Some of the greatest men have been the greatest braggarts, most self-satisfied of beings—and, NATURALLY—for they being intelligent, KNEW what was in them, just as the cackling hen knows there is a lovely shiny egg in the nest that she has left.

American Readers' Ideas on the Height of Affluence

In a recent editorial in the Boston American readers were asked to give their ideas of "The Height of Affluence." Several hundred replies have been received, some of the most interesting of which are herewith given:

TO AID ORPHANS, AGED, SICK

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

My idea of the height of affluence would be to buy a 200-acre farm and arrange for three institutions—one for orphans, one for the aged, and one for the sick and incurable. From experience and study I could make it self-sustaining and self-supporting, and at the same time eliminate the sting of charity.

Furthermore, would give the orphans a thorough, practical education and their choice of trade or profession, and when they came to maturity have them marry one of their own in the institution.

With the money earned, a trade or profession, education, etc., they would be well equipped to go out into the world and be independent.

This is my pet hobby, of which I have made a study for years, and hope and pray some day to be in a position to satisfy my greatest desire.

W. H. W.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The height of my affluence would be to see every imposter get his or her just dues.

To see the United States Government compete with the trusts.

To issue fiat money, instead of bonds, and buy out all the railroads, and pay off the cost of same with the dividends which keep the fares high and a constant drain upon the wage-earner.

And do the same with the other large industries that supply the necessities of life.

Then I think the common people would take an interest in their Government, which could do more for them than personal sacrifice or rich men's millions.

S. G. KRESLING.

DROPS INTO POETRY

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

My idea of affluence, based upon the state of the civilization under which we labor, may be summed up in the following four lines of my philosophy:

To work for love, and, with content,
Play fair and win all we can;
With smiling face keep up in the race,
And rejoice with good will toward man.

Yours truly, G. B. S.

HOUSES FOR WORKERS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I am interested in the discussion on the "Height of Affluence." My idea is to buy lots and build two-family houses, and each house to have a garden and trees. These should be made a boon for poor working people in the hot Summer days.

I think this would be one of the best ways of using one's money.

War Sonnets

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

WAR is destructive, wasteful, brutal, yet
The energies of men are brought to play,
And hidden valor, by occasion met,
Leaps to the light as precious jewels may
When earthquakes rend the rock. The stress and strain
Of war stirs men to do their worst and best.
Heroes are forged on and is hot with pain,
And splendid courage comes but with the test.
Some natures ripen and some virtues bloom
Only in blood-red soil; some souls prove great
Only in moments dark with death or doom.
This is the sad historic jest which Fate
Flings to the world, recurring time on time!
"Many must fall that one may seem sublime."

Above the chaos of impending ills,
Through all the clamor of insistent strife,
Now while the noise of warring nations fills
Each throbbing hour with menaces to life,
I hear the voice of Progress! Strange indeed
The shadowed pathways that lead up to light.
But as a runner sometimes will recede
That he may so accumulate his might,
Then with a will that needs must be obeyed
Rushes resistless to the goal with ease,
So the whole world seems now to retrograde,
Slips back to war that it may speed to peace.
And in that backward step it gathers force
For the triumphant finish of its course.

A Few Paraphrases

By WEX JONES

DO you think old friends should be forgotten? Do you think old friends should forgotten be? Should old friends be forgotten, and the days we used to have with them?

For old, long time, kid, for old, long time; we'll have another drink yet, for old, long time.

The two of us used to run up the hills and pull daisies fine, but since then we've wandered around a lot. For old, long time, kid, for old, long time; we'll have another drink yet, for old, long time.

The two of us have paddled around in the water from early in the morning until the dinner was cold, but the ocean has been foaming between us since then. For old, long time, kid, for old, long time; we'll have another drink yet, for old, long time.

And here's my mitt, kid, and gimme your mitt, and we'll take a right good jolt for old, long time.

For old, long time, kid, for old long time; we'll take another drink yet, for old, long time.

And, of course, you'll be your own pint bottle, and, of course, I'll be mine, and we'll have another friendly drink for old, long time.

For old, long time, kid, for old, long time; we'll have another little jolt, for old, long time.

It was an old bloke and he stopped me; and I asked him: "By your long beard, wherefore dost thou this thus?" He grabbed me and held the wedding guest with his lamp, which glittered brightly. Then, when he had the wedding guest cornered, he began:

We beat it out, says he, and the unlucky wedding guest tried to duck, but he couldn't. The sun, says the guy, says he, came up upon the left (being the east); up upon the left he came, and after shining all day he sank to rest on the right, or opposite side to that on which he had arose.

A large storm arose, and the wind being northerly, we were chased south, followed by a large aeroplanic albatross. It followed us around for a while, and then I copped it while it wasn't looking. After that we sailed along, and there was water, water, everywhere, but not a drop of it was used as a chaser.

There passed a weary time. Each throat was parched, and glazed each eye. A weary time! A weary time! And then along came some one, shaking dice with Death. (Perhaps Death was stuck, but it's doubtful.) And then the wedding guest beat it and the poor, antique sailor had to go home.

His Pa Writes a Few Love Letters

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

IT is a grate thing to be abel to rite letters of luv, Pa sed to Ma last nite. But it is a awful thing to have them letters sent up to the eighth floor? sed Ma. I mean the composing room, Pa sed, the room whare the printers work. Let me explain the process to you, sed Pa. The letters are typed on the seventh floor by one (1) of them gallant re-write men, & then the letters go up to the printers. Some poor, sad faced printer wich hasn't won the printers' pool the week befoar sets down in front of a type-setting machine, & this is what he prints:

Deer Honey Bug: I am sitting alone tonite, down here on Plum Island. I need you at my side. Nobody seems to understand me, not eeven the waiter. He brought me dark beer insted of lite.

I think it is a terribul mistaik for anybody to write letters, sed Ma, if the letters are about luv. I know I wrote you sum letters befoar we was wed, but I am glad to say thare was not a line in one of them that I wuddent show the whole world.

Well, sed Pa, I am pretty sure the whole world wuddent care to look at them. But these letters wich I am speeking about was wrote by a man, not a woman. I cannot understand why a man wud rite letters that makes him out to be a boob. Sum day, sed Pa, I am going to get my friend Dick Harding, the story riter, to rite a story about a man wich rites sweet letters to his gurl, & the end of the story will be that she can't see him with a spyglass. For instans, sed Pa, this wud be one of the letters.:

Deerest: This is the last day of August, & I feel sad & pensive. I am setting on a settee, you darling. Yes, that's jest what I am doing, setting on a settee. I am looking out over the lake, thinking of you and yure kisses. The settee is very hard, but my heart beats soft for you.

That sounds like one of your letters, sed Ma. It is kind of mushy.

Well, sed Pa, if you doant like that letter, lissen to this one:

My own: I am alone in my library tonite. It seems that the better nature in me is leeping to the surface tonite, and madly, passhunately, as McGraw wud leep at a umpire. Perhaps you wonder why I luv you with such passhunate luv. I do not know why, myself. All I know is that from the moment you crossed my path & I saw your flour face, I becaim a different man. I know you will remind me that I have a wife. I cannot find it in my heart to blame you for that. But the wife I have is not a wife wich has lamps like yures. She does not understand me, my own. She is a Norwegian, & I am a Swede. Goodnite, my own.

Well, sed Ma, do you think that is a better letter than the other one?

I do, sed Pa. It is moar soulful like, & convincing. If any one of the gurls that we both know happened to git a letter like that, I am almost sure that she wud fall for it, & beecum my wife, always providing, of course, that I so forgot myself as to git a divorce from you. There is nothing so con-vincing as a good letter, sed Pa.

All right, sed Ma, I am going to write you one to-morrow, & I will mail it to you on the way to the train. I am going hoam to mother.
